CREATION

By Jeffrey W. Starke - May, 1997 -June 2019

Imagine 14 billion years ago (so science proclaims) and the geologic time clock stand still at the split second of creation. Time as we named it began. Today, science attempts to reverse the time clock, and rewind to the singularity event, shrinking the expanding universe as we know it down to its beginning and proclaim it as the "Big Bang Theory" Today, millions of dollars from countries combined brought together to build the particle accelerator that promises to explain the moment before and after the alleged "Big Bang". What will we learn? How will it define energy? And so many questions than those. But, at the end of the day, we will be left with if the big bang created everything, We know one thing about the creator, it would have to occupy space and expend energy to create. The question then is, what created the space and supplied the energy for its outcome?

In a religious level of reason, we come away with, If God created the heavens and the earth and all that there is, we again, arrive at the same question. In order to of expended the resources to do so, the god would have to occupy space and expend energy. It then begs to be asked, then who, what, created the space for God to appear in and expend its energy?

So, you see it will always leave the within us to solve this dilemma and put it in a nice little box and package it up for us to sell among one. But, what if, time as we created it, is not the measuring stick by which to measure the moment of creation?

Let's go inside our bodies for a moment. We have a brain, in that brain is an endless amount of space potential for a thought. In a split second, we generate a thought, that thought, came from nowhere and manifested itself to a conscience level and awareness. The thought generated energy now took up space. To scale the space and the thought it now occupies, requires that thought to of generated energy, command molecules and manifest reality. With that of course, from that thought which seconds ago as you read this never existed. We of course now, measure it with time. Take that time and reverse it back to its singularity event line and you will be back at the beginning knowing it for the first time. In terms I called this, "The Mind Conscience Universe". For once a thought is generated it takes up space and manifest form and commands energy to bring it into an observable form. Thus, we need to be more careful with the thoughts we create. Since, everything is created out of nothing.

Science is now looking for a God particle and have spent more millions of dollars looking for an existence of a creator. A particle of energy that could be accountable for everything. Then go back to reiterate who created the space for the God particle to exist in order to manifest form? Wheels on the bus, go round and round.

At last, is it possible, that the creator is a random source? A means, like a thought in our brains ready to come into existence. Upon that existence, it brings a frame work of space itself? Is it also possible? then to say, That, any frequency or wave or pulse once manifest, commands matter, molecules, etc. and they must obey and follow through the lines of force as does magnetic waves? If, for a moment, we can grasp the possibilities of conscience and the sub conscience we will arrive at the more acceptable means to define our existence, as well as, the cosmos.

Einstein once said, "The universe is queerer than we imagine. No wait, it is queerer than we can imagine." He also stated." Bitter cold and warm and all the colors of the universe are but an opinion, they are not reality". In his brilliance, he too was left with the reality of defining creation.

In the Bible, Book of Genesis, most know the story. God created Man in his likeness, called him Adam and from man took the rib from ADAM, and created Woman "EVE" So, they had a counterpart to know of their existence, as well as, their god. Now paired, they were ordered to be fruitful and multiply. Then was placed in the Garden of Eden then, given instructions from God not to take from the tree of knowledge. And for obedience of the creator's laws they would be given everlasting life… STOP!

How about, the creator, is the likeness of matter. Rather Adam, it is "ATOM" and Eve, the counterpart-ELECTRON. Paired and multiplies. Causing an ever expanding reaction. Once taking in the knowledge through the experience and conscience awareness to create it's self and was able to create new elements, thus being God Like. Gaining the ability forever to have everlasting life.

So, no matter what religion you may have, it always arrives back at the beginning and that same unanswered old question again emerges.

I offer the thought conscience opportunity, to accept a divine creator most definitely. But, I want to expand on that thought, possibly, It was not by a conscience plan but a random occurrence that omitted energy and took on space and dimension. The random signal(s) are what the materials of space must follow without exception in order to exist. Or, they are cancelled out and space is manifested upon the awareness of self. Like the thought that didn't exist in our brain until the exact moment it manifested from nothing. For had that thought not be true. Then our brains would not work accordingly.

Here is where we find reality and the conscience and sub conscience receiver of all signals and origins. Meaning, in our case, the universe, the Milky-Way as we named it and all the cosmos. If we were to take and wind a copper wire following electronic rules and properties we have found to be useable and create the field that would when spun, generate a frequency of electric means. That signal would not work. Unless, the energy, atoms etc., followed the rules influenced by that signal. They then obey and are used. In that creation, random as it seems, you will find a deliberate intellectual function and sign wave and all molecules obeying in and around could and will create themselves pair with one another and have cause and effects of others around it, until, the signal ends. This is observable in the code of life.

If we look at our sun, our star. Or as the bible mentions the Son of Omega the beginning and the end, which is generating signals on all levels of expended energy. Influenced by the "Trinity" (Three as One) at the center of our galaxy. Those signals like the generator we build of copper wires has a random creation and yet the molecules must obey and will manifest and take up space and expend that energy. Thereby, from random means, our life and all species and substance that are affected by the random signals generated by our sun, in concert with influential energy bodies. Obey and create from matter creation as we know it. Again using, a Bible term, "I am the Son of Omega, the beginning and the end" Possibly, I am the SUN beginning and the end. So, in contrast, when the sun ends so too will all living things. Our sun, generates the frequencies, and the magnetic fields of force carry it to whatever matter it bumps and influences must then obey. Approximately a 432 hz. signal. Our creator, a random signal? That signal responsible for the random creations of life? As with thought, atoms, molecules mimic and creates adaptations to the elements for its survival.

Well you may argue this, but Earth the planet we live primarily of loadstone material, was struck in its distant past. When you strike a loadstone, it becomes magnetized it then begins the frequency pulse that then follows nothingness space as the carrier to the source of the pulse, thereby, magnetizing the loadstone and thus creating a frequency of such that attracts other matter. This attraction and frequency carries information that randomly matter follows. The means of magnetic fields in our core attracts these molecules of matter and they accelerate as they enter our core, in one end and out the other. Thus, forming in our atmosphere a frost line like what occurs on refrigeration lines. Caused by the pulse of frequency generated by the compressor generator. Our planet is now set up as an attraction for the frequency pulses that attract matter to us. These elements and building blocks used by all matter attracted to mother earth's magnetic core, are the building blocks for life and our existence in what science calls the Goldilocks zone. Whereby, water being unfrozen, releases the information from the suns signals True, many factors along with this signal attribute to life as we know it. But, would not be possible without the Trinity (Sagittarius "A" Star) frequencies random signals, that from a random source comes means for matter to organize and use elements from energy and manifestation of life. Stop the signal from the sun and our hearts will stop beating and all matter attracted to our magnet will now take on other weaker signals and change the entire structure of our planet. In other words, we will no longer be here because that happened.

Earlier, I mentioned spinning a magnet to generate electricity. Everywhere we look, there is energy being artificially generated or stored. There is no natural electricity, but rather, plasma. Lightening etc. is plasma, not electricity. Throughout the planet we generate electricity for our energy needs and uses. As such, when you follow the wires in your home, office, business or manufacturing plant to the end of its line, you will find a spinning magnet. A spinning magnet causes our natural magnetic lines to deviate. Evidence of this is obvious if you ever tried to bring two magnets together. But, that's for further examination later in this book. Science calls these controlled forces when generating, positive and negative. However, in a wire, such as copper, is north and south poled electrons. When a magnet passes over them they become aligned and the speed of passing the magnet causes the electrons to bang into each other causing friction among them that heat, is the thermal energy we use to operate all electoral mechanical devices and conveniences. Thus, it is not positive nor negative, it is north and south. And generating these signals causes the rest of the north and south fields to be disturbed. Altering the natural order of existence, which we rely on for our own health and field alignment to the rest of creation.

The Book Of Genesis

Is really and should be renamed to the book of Genius, as truly the balance and perfection obtained from a creator that was brought through random selection, to exist and generate frequencies, that elements follow, as we do our religions to the end. We believe we are connected to a creator and in essence we are feeling the connection of an endless stream of frequencies that emanate from our sun, influenced by signals and energy emanating from the center of our galaxy and perhaps influences beyond that. That pass through the vast spaces between our cells. We are all part of an endless stream of particles of which we can say have a conscience state of awareness of one's self.

In the beginning of this book, along with its naming it "Creation" I intend to deliver a comparison and compelling examples that will let you see from the inside out of what until this writing, many have alluded to or just failed to bring it into full circle as everything that we feel we have created or invented or willed into existence, is nothing more than what lives in perfection within our species. As stated, we have created nothing that doesn't already existed functionally in perfection within us.

TO MANKIND, CREATION IMPLORES…

From nothingness thou shall begin. And within the realm everything contained.

A never-ending moment, waiting to explain.

Create action – began the will that remains.

Drawn upon the attraction from nothing the will to see, energy and atoms a never-ending chain on the event horizon of eternity.

Colliding forces of these greats- gaining within its own substance and weight.

Within their mass they make space. For the passing of substance exchanging at various rates.

Energy is born I proclaim.

With their colliding fusions emits the great orb of light and in that light, are their cries arriving frequently, timeless upon the skies.

Upon the third rock in space was born humans.

Plants and trees and birds born free, we humans claimed for eternity.

Create Action again will restore, that which, man is known as the stimulus whore.

From nothing we will return to that August event, only to be reassigned to lose our minds.

The memories of what we have forgot, our bodies left to rot to be reassigned to do it again. But, never without the understanding we again, will end.

Return to the nothingness of the abyss. Praying for action to assist, traveling then to a new accord. Giving birth and credit to a lord.

Driving us in the same. That nothingness we will acclaim. Worlds without end. The heavens our friend.

For without that slight motion, you see, a nudge here or there, oriented by influence north or south, east or west with endless attempts here and there, did life begin from within and everything possible to obey. A slight nudge you can say, began creation amongst the nothingness we rely. Evermore only to again die.

We are energy, connected spirits by the invite of the great orb. and all contained in a moment frozen waiting for everything to thaw. Melted upon the ice, water arrives and light passing through the signal remains vibrating it begins its designs.

Bumping here and there embracing other atoms and giving them the cries of creating action they despair.

Exchanging freedom and free will to create upon its self. Did man ever get the chance to dwell in the house of the lord.

Thus, create an action I implore, setting time to record. Remembering this. from nothingness of its abyss, could we ever value that what would be missed.

So, upon your claim, you stimulus whore. I deplore your return to common sense, release the heavens that of which you have borrowed, you have nothingness to acclaim, and everything to gain.

Be still the beating HEART, for upon its protected shell we call EARTH, lies within and without the spirt of this account.

Create Action, It will expand and with it maybe next time, a better man.

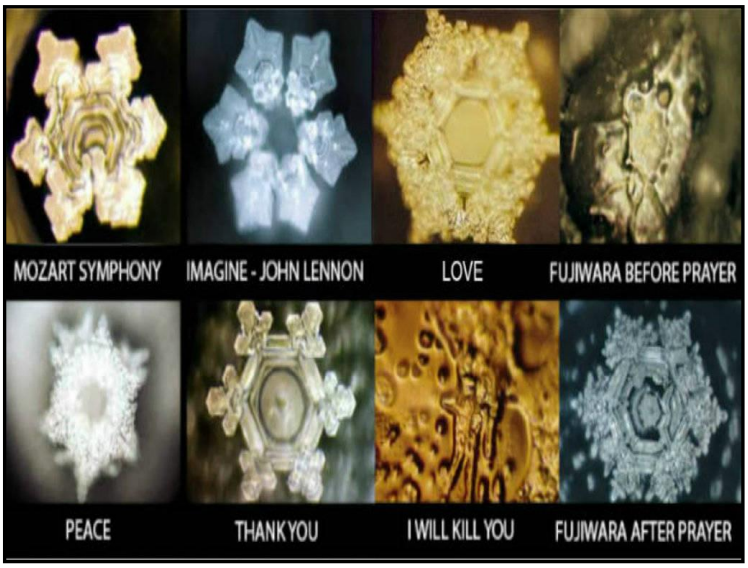

Create-Action is the term….. Creation is the word we spend a life time to learn.

HIDDEN MESSAGES IN WATER

Into the arms of water. The water is the retaining source and neutral agent for all things living. Within water is the memory bank and stored memory files of all the galaxy and random signals. Enveloped in Trinity's protecting arms. Water interacts with light that passes through it. The frequency is stored and used when it encounters other elements, which then read the file and follows the instructions. Like all atoms, molecules and cells there is in this signal's freewill, such, the elements and their interaction with one or the other which manifest instructions of offense as well as defense and randomly decided from what building blocks to use and build a species. Thus, the earth with all the goldilocks position and beauty creates on an evolutionary scale, Species. (Living organisms) Billions of them from the last count. Evidence of this is discovered by Dr. Masaru Emoto a Japanese scientist. Who captured water from running streams as well as the chemically treated water in city towns and villages. In his quest, he discovered by freezing water that it formed crystal snow flake like shapes. And in the crystals, were six sided and each side of crystal held the colors of the rainbow which are the frequencies of light. As it passes through the water, however frozen and captured, he then set out to identify how water interacts with life. How the snowflake image that water when frozen depicts specific pattern or factoring that is in all living forms. Amazing when you think about it, all this from some random occurrences.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

In this New York Times bestseller, internationally renowned Japanese scientist Masaru Emoto describes how the influence of our thoughts, words and feelings effects molecules of water.

This book has the potential to profoundly transform your world view. Using high-speed photography, Dr. Masaru Emoto, discovered that crystals formed in frozen water reveal changes when specific, concentrated thoughts are directed toward them. He found that water from clear springs and water that has been exposed to loving words shows brilliant, complex, and colorful snowflake patterns. In contrast, polluted water, or water exposed to negative thoughts, forms incomplete asymmetrical patterns with dull colors. The implications of this research create a new awareness of how we can positively impact the earth and our personal health.

Once he published these brilliant photos of how water reacted to words, sounds, music etc. Several universities around the globe conducted the same experiments, this time, in their written and vocal languages and got the same results.

Our bodies are 90% water and as we age we become 70% water in this process, our vocal chords are stimulated by fluids of water and our brain in a containment of fluid and water So, it would stand that water retains the frequencies of light within its randomly created storage to be read by anything that can interact with or upon it. Whereby, that information becomes the building blocks, such that, in the case of the Japanese Dr. discovered language is a given response to the water as it stimulates the outer world and interacts within it. That the water generates the stimulus to make sounds. And we react to the same understanding within us and agree the sound means this or that. Thus, language is created.

Our Bodies as Humans…

After oxygen, water is the second most essential element needed by the body. The average healthy human body is 69% water, the liver is 90% water; the brain is 85% water; blood is 83% water; the muscles are 70% water; bones are 35% water, and fats are about 25% water.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

Every organ in the body heavily depends on water to function correctly and we will never be truly healthy if we are not sufficiently hydrated with clean healthy water. Water is crucial to every bodily function; the body does not have any reserves to draw on and relies on daily intake. When we become dehydrated, the body works on a priority distribution system and it instinctively begins to ration water to each vital organ to maintain communication. The brain is the most important organ, so it gets the most water, the skin being the least important is rationed the least amount of water. By the time the thirst mechanism in the body switches on to tell you to drink water, the body is already dehydrated. When the body is dehydrated, 66% of the water loss is from the interior of the cell, 26% is lost from extracellular fluid and 8% is lost from the blood. Stressed, dehydrated cells manifest into all sorts of health issues that are never related back to dehydration. There has been very little research into this field as there is no money for the health industry in telling us to drink more water and hence no money for re search.

Stressed cells produce more acidic waste and dehydrated extracellular body fluid is not as able to remove toxic waste and so the body slowly becomes more toxic and acidic. Therefore, the first line of defense against disease is a properly hydrated your body. (Versatable tanks com .uA)

When we look at a symbol, we look through water that is the layer before our lens. Our eye is bathed in a layer and therefore we see the frequencies of light and respond to stimulus of a symbol, that through development of language, we all agree as we are connected to the creator of those random frequencies. Learned by and through water containing the light. Our different languages are nothing more than a product of our environment that land masses separated geologically and were exposed to various elements and chemicals that were attracted over long periods of time and the water that each species of living drank for survival, was the influence and means that they behaved by and adopted awareness to the other interacting elements caught in the same stream of influence generated by our sun. Granted other elements and conditions had to be right for life to be created and the location not just the geographical position on earth they lived, but, the reverences to the strength of the magnetic waves passing in and around on their way to the poles respectively. All these conditions, both chemically and magnetically, were recorded and stored in water to be released as requested by interacting molecules that met it. Thus, species created everywhere on the planet., not just in one region as science proclaims.

Then there is the reality that causes the sun to be influenced by a greater magnetic source called the core of the Milky way, A.K.A. "Trinity" the region by which we are caught by elements fused together magnetically charged to be destine to be pulled around the Milky way as our poles of our planet attempt to change, as it not only goes around our sun , but as we go with the sun around the Milky way. The magnetic influences and frequencies that trap us to this influence. But, it is the magnetic waves that organize the receiving frequencies of light, regardless of what scientist's acclaim. Without the dynamic motion, nothing remains nothing!

What may have been the origin?

In the distant past, our planet was struck by a large ice giant or perhaps another large rock. The impact of which cracked and shattered us. Our core was mostly nickel and loadstone. And as such, striking a loadstone will cause the loadstone to become magnetized. Once magnetized, the poles were established fundamentally by none other than the influence of the sun. As the poles became stronger the magnetic lines began to organize and accelerate. and as the thermal heat generated from the collision causes the influenced planet to create frost, while retaining the frequencies and becoming collected at the poles. Thus, the North and South poles begin to grow. The planet evolved and began to take shape, it was being tugged by the sun and its remnant body now held influenced in the balance we call our moon. However, the moon. retained a slight amount of magnetic attraction to attract poles and generate atmosphere although in its proximity to and in the goldilocks zone. As time went on, the planet cooled, and plates began to grind together influenced by the magnetic charging of materials that our planet retained prior to impact.

Now, at one point, the frost of magnetic waves going out of the North Pole and through to the south, when our planet was on the one side of the influence of the magnetic core of the Milky Way. It began to melt, much of the poles as our magnetic field gets drained when it comes closer to the sun, and the position we are relative to the Milky way's orbit, we are in with our sun, melts the frost and the ice changes, but the water, is still charged with the frequencies and information of the random signals and can and did create life as we know it. In a manner that is a product of all these factors, restated by influence of a random source.

Once the ages and our species became and evolved to language and symbols, the population began to grow exponentially. As more of our species became aware upon ourselves with the discovery to communicate our thoughts, retain them with the help of water, became stronger manifestations and we connected mentally with one another. Feeling this source and connection to what we began and reasoned from a god or creator. Well, this is particularly correct, but, the power of thought, being created from nothing in our heads, and expressed to another of common understanding given by the water we are, we felt connected to an un-seeable source or creator and pondered many thoughts of our origins. But, the fact remains the more signals of thought, the stronger we feel a presence. But, the only communication we will ever discover will be that of one another. As our frequency of thought generative form that commands molecules within the water, we are, and therefore is a finite channel.

SEE YOUR LIGHT ENERGY

Taken from fullspectrum.org.uk

We know scientifically through Kirlian photography that our thoughts when we pray emanate a light energy. When we form an Intuitive need and clasp our hands together and pray. True we are transmitting our thought to others whom seldom are aware of our thoughts, but for those who are wired can and will subconsciously receive. Whether they intuitively understand or just biochemically process and move on. It is none–the-less to one another, our prayers are answered in the influence of thought, through water, that those thoughts manifested form and expended energy to influence time and events we measure everything by. As the saying goes, "Careful what you wish for". Be responsible with your thoughts.

While admitted, many of the conjecture on Kilian Photography which is nothing more than a film across a metal plate charged with electricity that your hand, or any living thing emits for lack of better words, an "aura" of light. Many believe it not to be a life force but rather claim that the water or moisture can change the image and intensity of the light emissions. I was able to find non-living but mineral substances that had no water or moisture content but interesting the ones that glowed a "life force" were tools, coins that were struck violently in their manufacture process becoming magnetized to a slight degree which then magnetics would have a reaction. While the jury is still out on the science, it is noteworthy that from skeptics to scientist explain that water is to blame for the reaction and they used a level of light frequencies to transmit…. HMMMM

Science has always agreed that life on our planet began in the seas. As the water retained and processed the random signals of magnetic frequencies, molecules reacted to the stimulus and attraction and BE. I want to be clear that I am not advocating that there is not a God or creator at all, just merely stating, it is not in the moments before the big bang nor within an intelligent being of our likeness. We are truly lost in believing and governing our life, society and social status around no one human being who can positively prove they communicated with the supreme being while they feel a quote" FAITH" and a means to extract money for their social graces. Today, redemption is for sale. Not that I want to make a mockery of religion or to discount its means, but we must face the physical facts and ignore sciences explanations for gravity and magnetic forces. As truth be told, we would have to stop generated man made electricity on a titanic scale we do today, because we are destroying the creators signals of creation and undulating them to such a degree the true magnetic lines and forces established and regulate, balance our loads are endangered by the interruption of the magnetic lines as they have to go around our power stations. Nuclear reactors and other equipment that generate electricity have spinning unnatural magnets as well.

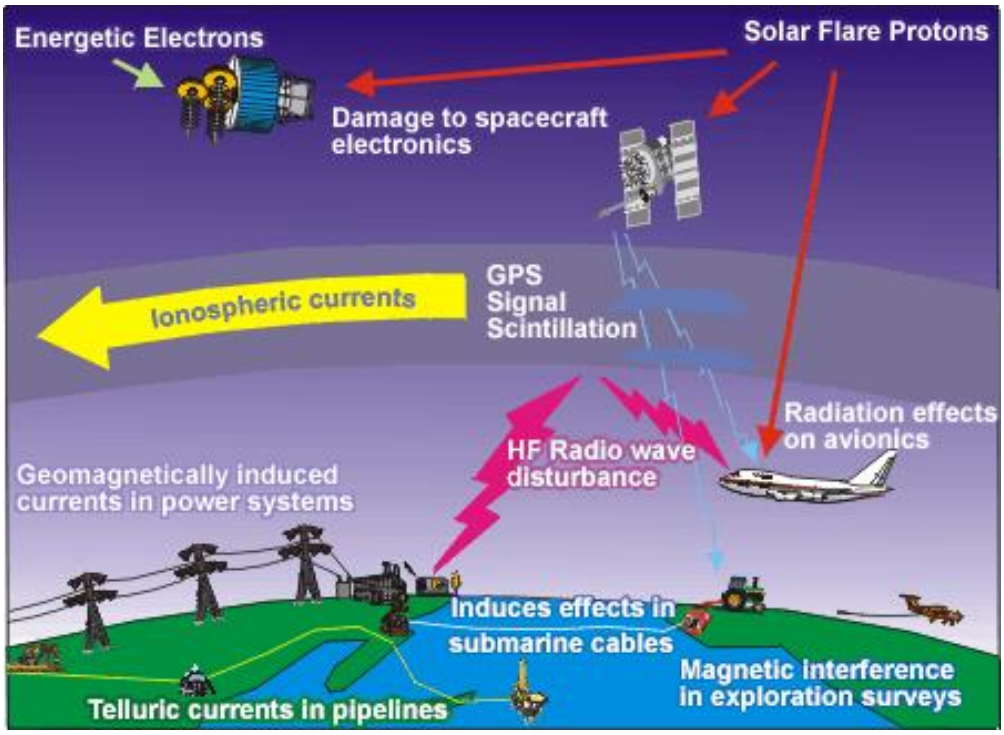

Over the last decade our AC electrical power supply has become increasingly "dirty". It's become contaminated with dangerous radio-frequency radiation – known to cause adverse health issues – including cancer. This "dirty" electricity is considered by many experts to be the most biologically active electromagnetic pollution, and therefore the most dangerous. This powerful, unnatural electromagnetic energy from outside the body disrupts our body's critical balance and plays havoc with the millions of electrical impulses that the body uses to regulate all cellular activity. This unnatural energy interferes with our body's natural processes including sleep, hormone production, our immune system and our ability to heal. All modern electronic devices including computers, TVs, stereos equipment, CFL and low-voltage lighting use transformers and power supplies to convert our relatively clean 60/50 Hz AC current to the low-voltage power used to power all our today's modern electronic devices and energy-efficient lighting systems. To save energy these devices use transformers that "chop-up" our conventional AC voltages, using it in short bursts as opposed to a smooth continuous flow of current. This constant stopping and starting of the electrical current causes a combination of what engineers call electrical feedback, in technical terms known as "electrical transients and harmonics". This electrical pollution rides along on a building's electrical system with the ability to contaminate an entire home and even buildings and homes nearby. Humans can be exposed to this dangerous EMF energy simply by being near a contaminated room or next to electrical devices plugged into AC circuits; we are exposed to this toxin through "capacitive-coupling". For many, health problems become worse when living and working in an environment contaminated with dirty electricity and other EMF energy. Dr. Rajiv Desai. MD. September 4, 2012

Before we can blame our Creator, we must blame ourselves. As magnetic lines and force influence how, we can organize within the water the memory and retention of thought itself.

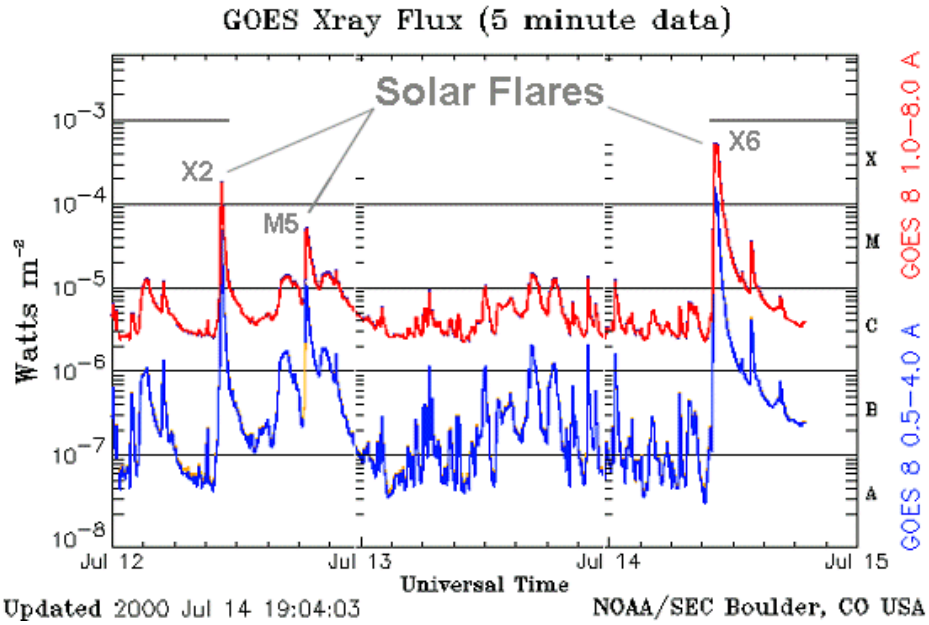

The disturbance of magnetic influences that we commercially produce for all our conveniences and use of energy is such, that disturbs our own thought processes. We become isolated from one another, experience irritants at dis-ease of life and towards one another. As the life-giving signals coming from the "Trinity" and our sun get rerouted or weakened by our manufactured spinning magnets. As a result, our negative influences of electrical energy and transmitting frequencies of telecommunications even from space bombarding us, as well as, along wires in the ground and above our heads causes negativity to form an opinion and fear from isolation. We can no longer process an organized thought for any one person and agree with another. Humanity is disconnected partially from creation you can see by this, by how much humanity has added into the elements and disturbed the natural flow of electrons which provide us with life making instructions. Add with the random occurrences of Solar flares from our SUN cross hatching and disturbing our man-made signals as well. When solar flares occur, you can look around the planet and find human sufferance's, increase in hate crimes mass shootings and even suicide.

The Classification of X-ray Solar Flares or "Solar Flare Alphabet Soup"

A solar flare is an explosion on the Sun that happens when energy stored in twisted magnetic fields (usually above sunspots) is suddenly released. Flares produce a burst of radiation across the electromagnetic spectrum, from radio waves to x-rays and gamma-rays. [more information]

Scientists classify solar flares according to their x-ray brightness in the wavelength range 1 to 8 Angstroms. There are 3 categories: X-class flares are big; they are major events that can trigger planet-wide radio blackouts and long-lasting radiation storms. M-class flares are medium-sized; they can cause brief radio blackouts that affect Earth's polar regions. Minor radiation storms sometimes follow an M-class flare. Compared to X- and M-class events, C-class flares are small with few noticeable consequences here on Earth.

Let's explore an example. Electricity is not natural, it is man-made. When we build our houses, we establish a ground rod into the earth and tap its origin for electricity to travel directionally as needed. So now our entire house is grounded, thus magnetic lines go around our homes. Then we have our cars, on rubber tires isolating us from ground. Then we go to our offices or cubicles and build within those buildings that are grounded to earth, walls and windows and isolate ourselves from one another's thoughts. So, our house is isolated we then build fences to keep thoughts out (people) we drive our car and it has an alternator with a spinning magnetic making electrical frequencies. Fans that blow cold air, or hot air, to speakers for our radio within those cars (Unnatural and not synchronized with mother earth) we roll up our windows to isolate from other thoughts. However, manage to communicate with sign language to other motorists when we are displeased with their actions. Then we go to our offices and work centers and again, isolate ourselves from one another's thoughts and influences. We are so lost in receiving the natural signals the first thing we do in our house, car and workplace is got to have a radio, music or other means of artificial (noise) frequencies, often, to drown out our own thoughts of self. We so long for communication with creation itself we create our own artificial messages, which we call entertainment. (A trillion-dollar industry last count)

So far, we established. As a planet, we're a spinning magnetic, receiving frequencies from our sun and Milky way and possibly beyond in other frequency generated systems. That, without water to retain the memory and formation pattern that no life would exist. Without the random magnetic forces, atoms and molecules would be without command or processed will. Therefore, creation is as it sounds. Create Action and life began. Could we then state, if a random source created us. Then it is possible knowing the infinite number of magnetized bodies in the cosmos receiving random signals from a star in a close enough proximity to keep water unfrozen so light can pass through and retain the right frequency's that again, atoms. Molecules and matter will be attracted and come together and create what we understand life to be? This is a strong possibility. But, I am sure it will be a long way off from the influences of our sun.

All DNA, stem cells etc., rely on water for command. In every living creation from this random free will creates and recreates. And within everyone, a means by which to transform the created energy has a dormant balance of programs that is enacted when the energy or life or light as you will, diminishes or fades or weakens. When this occurs, these disciplined cells come out of dormancy and begin to consume the cells of the living creature. In the case of death when the moment the light goes out and there is no stimulus frequency obtainable. These cells are programed to consume its counterpart cells. So, this decomposition of state, science can determine the exact moment of death in all living things. So accurate, they can determine what state the body was in decomposition and for how long. Well, cancer that eats away at living cells is nothing more than, a weakened signal or lost signal from the light storing and influencing of our sun and beyond. That, either we poisoned chemically with food and preservatives killing the natural-instinct why we eat this or that, gathered from the cells programed by creation to accept for means to process energy. When this occurs, the cells are triggered to come out of dormancy and eat at the cells. When a life signal is disrupted in the case of chemicals or preservatives, sugars fats etc. or poison itself, or just when the light within us or any living species for that matter quits, it triggers this release. The cells come out of dormancy and begin consuming other cells that no longer vibrate. We call this cancer.

Same as when a seed goes dormant in the ground sometimes years to hundreds of years, it relies on frequencies that are specific to its program before sprouting. Thus creation.

John Muir once said:

"When we try to pick out anything by itself, we find it hitched to everything else in the Universe ".

This in itself, points to we humans, that the frequencies contained in light and it's information then stored in water, is the basis that creation manifest and takes on form and space.

Thus, repeats deliberately and frequently traveling along the magnetic wave from its origin, our parent sun. Factoring in nature simplifies this and brings it forward to us to ponder nature's creation. Influenced by the respective transmission randomly generated by our parent sun. influenced by our trinity at the core of our Milky way.

Again and again and again, the frequencies travel through everything on its way to the core of our planet. As it is and ever shall be, a world without end.

So where does it begin? Where will it end? How will we perceive our realities and fate?

Well, to begin with, a specific signal, constantly generating attracts molecules, atoms, and energy to follow the attraction of a magnetic origin emanating from the random generator called our sun, Milky Way and beyond also having influences. To an ideal location given direction by the properties of magnetic forms called earth. And it being in an ideal zone for habitability. Containing the fundamental element of water to retain the memory, store it, until it comes in contact with other elements that read the messages in the water and follow without conviction those instructions. Yes, they have free will to create themselves any shape or form from will, following of course, the ability to stay within the whelm of the signal. This signal is of an intelligent nature that once randomly repeating and undulating. It then is observed to have a pattern by humans who believe then it is deliberate, intentional and intelligent. But is it possible, that it just is, and we find the pattern of common displacement where we thought our conscience determines it as intelligently created? Or just that we with our conscience abilities to study these repeating frequencies coming to earth, that, because we understand basically their use and origin that we call it intelligent? There are two actions taking place, the sun's transmission of light arriving to earth, and passing through the spaces of all matter on its way to the core. Then when they collide and fuse, makes our molten core. Whereby, charging the magnetic source then streams out magnetic wave lines of force. These passing each other is where energy is created, destroyed or renewed.

This is the basis for CREATION. (Create Action) If this has been graspable for the reader I promise you now reading on will enlighten you to higher levels of self-awareness and appreciation for the miracle as in human settlement we give to a creator, in our likeness or otherwise. But, whether we believe it to be in our likeness it would have to be or we would not be here to even have that as a thought which is the basis as I said of Creation. Without it. The mind conscience universe I am sharing, would otherwise not of been shared period. So, we are created in the likeness of our creator. Deliberate or otherwise random. Is it possible that the souls before us had this enlightenment? I believe they did. Believe they reasoned and processed possibly better, their understandings and awareness. When considering the artificially created energies of modern day were not altering the signal from our outside planetary influences such that of our sun.

WE HAVE CREATED NOTHING, WE HAVE INVENTED NOTHING…. WE JUST MIMIAC THAT WHICH WAS ALREADY THERE.

So, a random generated signal from our sun, creates a pattern and draws attention from all matter. This pattern, this signal if you will, travels upon the magnetic waves that are being drawn to each respective pole. For some of this matter, we cannot detect as it passes through the spaces or matter of all things. On its way to the poles of our planet through natures laws of attraction. It is certain that had we not been struck as a load stone and magnetically charged. We would have had no consequence to the suns random generating signal. It would of simply of passed through us as if we were nothing more than resistance like wind blowing on a sail. While it applies and has resistance, it still travels between the spaces of the cloth woven that make the sail. While continuing to its magnetic attraction. I use this comparison to identify GRAVITY.

Ever wonder why science explains Gravity yet finds no evidence of a particle or wave identifying it as gravity? It is because it doesn't exist. Gravity like a sail the wind pushes and causes force to be applied and the sail bows in the force of wind and transmits its force to the sails rigging and ultimately to the craft. However, the wind still passes through the spaces between the woven fabrics continuing. For had there be no spaces the wind would send the sail boat without will to the winds traveled destiny. Well, gravity is the sum of all particles traveling on their way to our planets core (poles) and as it is in flux. It passes through the spaces of all things. And some matter gives up a resistance. This resistance traveling through stone, dirt, water ice, and all living species and every element in the atomic known table of elements. (Yes they have spaces as well) when this is occurring, the force and resistance determines the drag upon the resistance be it you or I for example. And is then equates to Gravity as we named it. Meaning. The speed of the particles traveling and going between and through us and our cells composition can be measured by that resistance. This is Gravity and it is measured as 14.7 PSI.

While science claims it is centrifugal forces that be still us as gravity. I would like to challenge your mind to examine this:

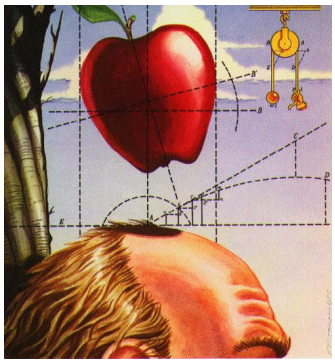

We are on a planet that spins at approximately 1,000 mph and is traveling in orbit around our sun at 17,000 approx. mph which is traveling around our Milky Way, which is then traveling in flow with all other known bodies. We know this by physical examination. Place a mark on the ground. That is at the edge of a shadowing the sun, then time the mark and you will observe it moves in one minute. In doing this relative to the earths spin we know it arrives back at this point in 24 hours precisely. So, the earth is then 24 hours rotation means it is approximately 239,250 miles in circumference. Otherwise we would have 23 hours or 26 hours in a day cycle. So, measuring the mark on the ground for one minute, then calculating the 60 minutes of traveled distance can prove the measurement of the earth and its speed. Now as I said herein, how'd we know we are flying through space at 17,000 miles per hour? Easy, NASA knows all too well our rockets must reach escape velocity 17,500 mph or the planet will run into the rocket. So, that being said.

Imagine for a moment… we are spinning at 1,000 miles an hour. Traveling through space at 17,000mph and I am standing steady as I can in a boat in the North Atlantic Ocean and I have a rock, and I drop the rock overboard. It goes to the bottom of the ocean because the particles passing through everything on its way to our magnetic attraction like the sail is pushing it at a force greater than or equal to 14.7 lbs. Now say there is a clone of me at the split second 180 degrees on our planet in a boat and both drop a rock at precisely the same time. Both rocks travel to the bottom of the ocean. Now step back and examine this for a moment. Two rocks, 180 degrees apart travel to the bottom of the ocean. How then can gravity induced by centrifugal force cause this to occur? So, if you accept the fact that particles are coming at us from the sun and other bodies solely because we have a magnetic field drawing them and they will travel through the spaces of all matter to get here. Because, the matter has various spaces between them will cause a forces resistance we measure as 14.7 lbs. is a lot more believable now. GRAVITY, its not just a good idea. But, it is the law!.

ROCK GOES TO THE CENTER of the earth

When Newton was clunked on the head from an apple falling from a tree. He forgot to equate that the apple was on its way to the core driven by forces passing through the spaces within it.

Science attempts to use mathematics to determine, equate and rationalize the reasons for physical observances. In that, they believe that since atoms, planets quasars, pulsars etc., appear to be infinite, then so is mathematics infinite and so it is thought, that for every atom, planet etc., can be assigned a number and they are infinite then so can numbers be infinite and now we can count and assign a definite number/ value or identify to everything there is. However, assigning a number and or counting infite items can and will allow us to explain the characteristics observed, it is just a number. Therefore, not what it is in . Einstein once said “Bitter cold and warm and all the colors of the universe are but an opinion… they are not reality. So, when pondering equations of vast numbering step back and question oneself, now that I got an answer,, what is this really?.

Within the realm of possibilities, and in the sum of all options to anything within the universe, one can surmise that and when using “Occam’s Razor”, that just because we can doesn’t mean that we should. And the simplest is usually the best answer.

Thus, FACTORING becomes the obvious to all observers. We have since the beginning of time grouped, counted and assigned order. It is only the mere relevance to this, that we can see that we mimic that which is repeating constantly and therefore, we will always see and feel in everything a repeating constant frequency of events where, nature itself, follows the same frequency. It is this factoring and repeatability that time and the constant is established to the order of all things.

Which brings us to the point of this book! It is the essential element and fabric which creation can exist. There is nothing in our outer world that doesn’t exist in perfection within the living body of all species. The signal of frequency coming from our trinity, our sun and beyond. While not visible, until it has something to reflect off, can we feel and sense the warmth and light. But, rest assured, it is traveling through everything on its course and direction influenced by magnetic fields. But, it travels through the spaces between the elements, atoms, molecules and such. However, contained within the signal is information within that signal that is deliberate, repetitive and factors to a fault of repeatability that marvels and resembles an intelligent organized order. This signal influences everything and passes between the electrons, on its way to the core of our planet which has a magnetic attraction. However, If not for the fact we have water, when the light passes through water, the water retains the signal (information) as such, water is a neutral agent to everything. Every living species needs water. Why Water? Why not something else? Water, capable of retaining light, random as this is, order is created. Water absorbs and expresses its influence on everything it meets. Our bodies, in fact all species, must have water in order to exist. These living species on our planet, systems built from the constant influential frequency that causes order forms factoring to all things.

Now that we see our sun transmitting light and energy we can now apply reason that the light travels through water the water retains the factoring and the free will of those elements begin to fashion order and in themselves, maintain a code or pattern to replicate. If it wasn't for the planet being struck as a load stone and magnetized. The attraction of all elements would not have a sense of direction repulsion or attraction. Thus, organization would have been unorganized able. But, because of the magnetic field of our planet and the attraction created by the magnetic attraction can water exist.

When our planet was struck and magnetized, the attraction began, and all elements influenced to arrive at our magnetic core. This attraction and quantity of elements, particles and substances attracted, go in one end of the pole and out the other. This process causes an extreme cold frosting as everything is being squeezed from everywhere to arrive an finite origin and the poles become frosted. If this was not a fact, the icebergs or North or South Pole would not have the shape and depth that we observe. Where it is conic under the water and conic shape above. so, the particles on their way to the poles, forced to a finite location as vast of quantity being attracted frosts the top of the poles and becomes from nothing frozen water. Within this frost is the factoring of crystals that light passes through and retains its frequency and information. When melted the water now can penetrate and come in constant contact and begin to vibrate and synchronize with what it comes in contact which then interacts and exchanges information. If this did not occur the organization would not be possible and creation would not have formed.

So, what about planets in the cosmos that has a low magnetic field? It is easy to say there will be no resemblance of life or repeatability of frequency to be retained thus no organization can occur. However, all elements known have a measure amount of magnetic attractions. Creation is random and out of random the free will of the frequency is organized. While they all have some form of magnetic attraction /repulsion. Their mass as they are formed have larger spaces between them and less energy can be exchanged. Therefore, the larger space between the matter the less tug and pull as they pass each other occurs and more or less energy retained therefore, will create less gravity of substance. Without the proper balances the magnetic source of the sum of materials that did become attracted remained but not enough that, the core became fusion ally charged by the cores attraction. Thereby little to no magnetic waves to exchange energy and retain energy to create gravity much less establish poles to bring to a finite position where the poles could be charged and begin frosting of the point where they are sped up or slowed down. When they pass to the North to South poles and pass through the material of the planet that frost can be formed in the presence of the balance of nitrogen over oxygen.

It seems difficult to comprehend. But, much easier to accept than that of a singularity as I pointed out in earlier time. Singularity will never become possible as there will always be something else needed to support it. But, now comes a much easier way to focus our attention on thought. Here within our minds is space. The same space as between us and all things out side the body as well as inside the body. Whereby, the space is then no different that the space between you and me or planet to planet or universe to universe. It is the same. The space science likes to call Dark Matter, then ponders how dark mater can have energy. Stay with me now for just a moment. The point of creation is coming.

In our minds, the same space of dark matter exists and when we have a thought. Out of nothing will manifest a conscience or Con-Science as I refer to it. A great magic trick if you will, where science cons us into believing we exist. Well from a split second before the thought. There was nothing but dark matter then you have a thought. The reaction of the thought now manifest and commands molecules to react and thus the thought takes on from a random source, an image, for you and occupies space, transforms energy kinetically into a form of organized existence. But, again, milliseconds before, it was just space. How does it do that? Well it makes better sense and easier to prove than believing in a singularity that one must explain started it all, where we are then back to the origin of explaining whom created the space for that entity to exist and manifest. Something else had to create the space for it to exist, right? Here is where I can offer makes sense, in that, dark matter is everywhere and the space between dark matter is where something from nothing can be created. I can now prepare you for how!

Science has debated and been puzzled when troubling themselves over reversing the cosmos back to a singularity and when embarrassing this thought, you soon realize it is a dead end. That still fosters beginning. Here, Dark Matter the endless obstacle that stops human minds from comprehending our own existence is also holding us back from further creation.

DARK MATER The beginning, the end… (A.K.A. Nothingness)

If I haven't lost you, you been found. Dark matter a source that occupies all, exists because there are spaces so vast between them, energy passes through the fabric of what we call space. (Nothingness) As the dynamics of space (dark Matter) the magnetic fields all created by the kinetic passage of matter passing by and through the spaces of all elements known to man and including the endless infinite elements un-discovered. In this kinetic dynamic motion as elements pass between the spaces of dark matter there is for lack of any other identity called north and south fields. As they pass through these spaces, there is an energy and exchange. A polarization effect that renders matter to transform and develop into a space occupying matter. Then this matter moves the space and causes further energy and transformations. (Creation or Create Action) So, from nothing a thought can be created where nothing existed before, and then takes on form and generates space and occupies it following the influence of magnetic forces and to its free will, is born existence, on a level or plane that occupies space where space was moved and displaced between the dark mater itself. For just a moment, pause and manifest a thought in your brain, as stated, dark matter is everywhere but until you think the thought you thunk. Nothing was there before and so in the case of creation nothing existed until the thought and the process of creation emerges. Expending the energy and taking on space to do so. "Dark Matter", as Scientist coined it is really a fancy name for "Nothingness".

Nothingness didn't need to be created, it is nothing. However, within nothing is the potential for everything. All it takes is and action. Create Action thus, Creation.

So, now you will say, okay who created the dark matter? Simple, dark matter is spaces between nothing and everything is a combination of matter woven like a fabric. Where the number of threads make up the whole. And of course, when woven there is spaces for energy to pass through. How can we prove this?

Science tried to prove gravity and explains that it is in centrifugal forces that create gravity. Earlier we challenged your mind to that theory. Now, let's explain it. Since dark matter exists and space between them and as energy is exchanged as it passes between the spaces of the dark matter fabric, it is influenced and energy is created. Only because magnetic fields everywhere are formed and give motion our planet is magnetized and as such all matter is attracted to the fields it is coming at us from all directions and accelerating at incredible speeds. We know it causes frosting as they accelerate to the finite location of our poles or we would not have polar ice caps at each end of our planet. Compound this with the obvious stated earlier as spinning and flying through nothingness.

For matter to be influenced, science can't show us a particle or matter that identifies itself as gravity. Let's look at what I proposed for dark matter as well as prove gravity. Like dark matter it is the sum and whole of everything for without it, nothing could ever of existed. Like a thought. But, as dark matter has spaces like the sail of a woven sheet of fabric. Think of it the same and you will understand this. A sail boat with a staff to support a woven sheet that wind acts upon in dynamic force influenced by the magnetic fields of our planet as the wind passes through the sails spathe matter following the attraction we now understand that it travels between the spaces and gives off energy or exchanges energy well there are spaces between our cells of our bodies and as the energy is passing through dark matter it is being attracted by our magnetic field. Which enters our poles at alarming speeds and volumes. As a result, it passes through everything of the woven fabric. Energy is applied and exchanged thus pushing the sail boat in a controlled direction at will of the pilot. As the wind pushes upon the sail, wind traveling through the sail must continue its direction and some energy is given up to the sail as a force, The remainder continues through. Well, as dark matter is everything and has spaces like the sail the direction is still influenced by the magnetic fields, same as though in galaxies, universes and planets with a magnetic field. As they travel to the next destination of magnetic attraction, they pass through dark matter and forces are created as energy. But, in the case of the sail of the boat, the energy exchanged is the gravity force we experience and measure at 14.7 lbs. per square inch. This dark matter and the transferring caused by magnetic attraction as it is so minute in size and endless volume passing through the spaces of dark matter our cells of our bodies on its way to the core from all directions, is the same as the sailboat sail as wind passes through energy is transferred to the sail retained and allows the rest to go between the spaces of the woven fabric, this force is gravity and that's why science cannot find a particle or substance to call gravity, but, I assure you centrifugal forces don't induce gravity. Dark matter on its way to our core does. That's why, based on a planets size and or location, its magnetic influence, or lack thereof that we find we would weigh differently in other planetary or objects that took up great space and moved the dark matter aside to occupy that space. We weigh differently on various planets because their magnetic attraction of all particles passing through dark matter making the exchange of energy created passes through everything that has a space for it to pass through and as a result based on the attraction determines the strength of the wind as in a sail transferring a force.

Dark matter creates everything as the saying goes, shit happens. But, in this case shit don't happen it takes a movement! This movement and exchange while passing through dark matter generates energy if this was not so, our own cells and DNA would be without information which is contained by the existence of water that mimics the vibratory motion of all elements it comes in contact with and without water to absorb those vibrating frequency, nothing would of been possible. Cosmic bodies are nothing more than entities that have become magnetized and thus influence motion through dark matter and create energy to do work and as the attraction builds up and bonds with now created from nothing particles that are now under its vibratory influences and begin to cling together with common charges and vibratory exchanges when they continue to increase in size and displace dark matter to exists, period.

Thus, creation is a forgiving dark matter that moves aside to allow for expanding energy. Seems incredible and unfathomable, but remember, on our planet alone as it appears, the air and water H20 as we have identified it as such, the only difference between water and air molecules is the space between them, influenced by the magnetic field and its transference being exchanged that seemly settled down and organized what we except as life. But, random as it is, we know the space between these molecules is so vast for example, we split a hydrogen atom and look at the energy it releases. Splitting an atom causes a chain reaction that disturbs dark matter and as this disturbance chain reaction causes the forces to move immediately at rapid seemingly un-measurable speeds creating more kinetic energy. Wow!

Based on direction, these particles become north or south poled and influenced and as they get caught in the fabric of dark matter they collide, and fragments are then ripped from the mass of the particle and then take on their own identity in the form of an element. As some are magnetically charged others are statically attracted. They continue to collide and enlarge. When this occurs, the expansion of the matter begins to spread open the spaces and begins to push on the rest of dark matter. Until, the space they create occupies dimension. Thus, astrological bodies are created and continue to grow and expand. Creation makes its mark out of dark matter that is the presence of everything thus needs no creator. Dark matter is coined in scientific circles, but I chose to refer it as nothingness. As nothingness needs no Create –Action. It is still and everywhere and doesn't need creation. It simply takes from nothing and when action occurs it is out of nothing that everything is contained and will obey by magnetic attraction and repulsion.

Dark matter simply put, is the presence of nothingness, therefore, it never had to be created. But, through motion driven by magnetic influence causes it to have a direction as it passes through the spaces of nothing, energy is created and creation begins to occupy space and dimension. And within nothing. Everything can and will be created.

Herein, lies the essence of creation. Like I stated earlier, in our mind, is the same space and spaces of nothingness and with just your mind moving, generating a thought, energy is created out of nothing and takes up space, your thought will then follow the commands of creation and manifest form and your vision can and will be created,

We mimic that which is repetitive and must obey motion. For without motion, everything could not be possible. We tend to have difficulty understanding or comprehending this notion, (nothing motion) = notion. Remember, we are on a planet spinning at 1,000 miles per hour and flying through space at 17,000 miles per hour (approx.) then we are traveling around our sun that is traveling around the Milky way each 90 degrees of pass changes the magnetic fields we are experiencing, broken into four parts of a circle identified by North, South, East and West) however, the milky way I assure you is traveling around another source or being pushed by an opposing force. (North or south field of magnetic forces) for if it was pulling we would collide. Thus, this dynamic motion is all moving directionally through nothingness and in its motion comes everything. Simple right? Other universes move at the varying speed based on the spaces between its attracted substances and the bodies in and around that draw them to or repel or attract them from or to one another.

The same applies, using this understanding, can explain why some galaxies are traveling faster than others. is because the materials and areas of their elements have more attraction magnetically than other galaxies that have less. Based on the universe itself how dense the bodies are between one another and the magnetic stored charge of its center mass and magnetic value.

Science claims that the universe all have black holes.

In discoveries looking out upon the cosmic viewing screen and using our telescopes to view other galaxies, we see some with a black hole and then others with a white core. But, I say in order to everything I have manifested for your reading consideration and pleasure that science is viewing what we call the Ying and Yang principle of life. They must realize that in nothingness. Create action begins from nothingness and when action is implemented that out of nothing, everything is contained within. And therefore, a dynamic action takes on energy. The core of a universe is seen by man and determines and catalogs these as a white star core or one having a black hole. Then they say no wait! We discovered it has a binary system. Well what they are seeing is creation in motion, that Dynamic movement of action creating energy and the black hole (South Pole) represent the corridor of which the energy is traveling and the white core is the North Pole. I propose it is impossible for a galaxy or universe to form without the ying and yang model that is randomly created from nothing. I now name this the Star-Key (or key to the stars) to the cosmos. Ironically named after my last name Starkey however I remove the Y because it is the Y symbol for Ying and Yang and I don't take credit for that one. It belongs to the Great Architect.

So, what created magnetic forces? As nothingness was always present either here nor there, a term Greeks called either. As it balanced its area and became relaxed is when the spaces between the nothingness permitted was when movement occurred, this movement now passing through the spaces transferred energy and thus began the chain reaction, Similar as we surmise splitting an atom, since nothingness contains everything possible, every element and every molecule is possible and that transference as it passed through one direction of moment between the spaces of nothing, energy was created and elements born chain reactions, causing proportion of moments based on the direction being established would be what we term north and south fields. Thus, the duality pattern began and continues today. North south, hot cold, dark, light, positive negative, high low, all the terms of duality caused by the event time from nothing. Creation begins and ends as our biblical interpolation. I am the sun of omega the beginning the end. Event thinkable or possible to comprehend but is undeniably possible and is.

Since creation, everything within nothingness mimic's this pattern or chain reaction. All, things must obey and follow because the magnetic properties contained and now established generate a constant frequency or frequencies that cover spectrums far exceeding human or can be detected. Often, human is fooled by the fact we must as hunters and gathers use the senses given by the formula or code that created the species and believe in that pattern we must hold, see, touch, feel, taste or it doesn't exist. For there is in infinity as Einstein said, "if all the planets and universes are infinite and one planet that has life and conscience awareness of itself and as far as we can see we are the only known form of life existing, next to infinity we are zero and therefore do we exist at all?" Humoring Einstein he forgot to include the zero established of nothingness and direction, North or South the duality created motion and energy released so being nothing is only present in time as we are. And therefore, in the center of nothingness going out in both directions this explains our sense that time presents itself always at zero called present. And going forward Yes, needing motion can mother positive numbers as we use to count all things infinite can we project the future as well as going from present negative motion can we count all things infinite. In the past.

Time present, and time past are both perhaps contained in times future. And time future contained in time past, if all time is unredeemable and if all time points to one time which is present, that what might have been, has been and remains a perpetual possibility. And in little giddying, would be to arrive at the beginning and know it for the very first time. I could explain this in numbers and formulas, but, all mathematics are not based on these starting points which is why science is unable to fathom creation.

The four dimensions within Nothing Of the Binary Kind!

If you sense you experience space

If you think you experience time

If you're intuitive you experience wavelength

If you feel you experience energy

These, I propose are the foundation to the four dimensions, (four parts of the circle) which have factored or formed within creation. While science tries with mathematics to explain 9, 10, 11 dimensions and contain time and space as one. I suggest the only way creation could have started was by motion and each of these four dimensions existed. Within nothingness. For without this nothingness would of remained. Which is why we refer to it as Binary the four elemental functions repeating within the frequency of light energy.

So, why does everything factor and pattern?

Ever wonder why a tree even on the side of hill grows and follows a level line within a few degrees? Well an interesting experiment points this out and explains how and why. Traveling through the Rocky Mountains, I came across a side-line store for tourists and in that store they sold a novelty gift. An hour glass with a magnetic base and within the hour glass

e Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

was metal filings. Remember, all water and even the air has spaces between them and contain elements that are magnetically influenced, while traveling to the core through magnetic attraction. Anyway, taking the hour glass and reverses it as the filings are attracted to the magnetic base and are falling at the rate and speed of the non-magnetic particles pushing it towards the core of the earth. You can observe the filings organizing and aligning in a vertical manner and assembly to one another creating a tree, flower, rocks formations and the like. Thereby, proving that nature as we call it follows these lines of force or action and thus create. Here are the building blocks of creation and exist within nothing we call space, the same space between you and me and the same space between cosmic bodies and all are contained within nothing. Thus, is why, nothing created nothing and therefore didn't need to be created nothing is everywhere but within nothing, everything is possible all it takes is to create an action. When it moves in north or south direction, it creates energy and magnetic waves are born. Here in lies another observation, this, like hour glass when subjected to magnetic actions the mere shape of the hour glass is in the shape of what we use it identify the infinity. However, dimensions being the constant in order for creation to occur they pass back and forth, and action is established and out of nothing energy is born and brought into motion.

What then supports an entity like a planet or star of mass within nothing?

As stated. Nothing didn't need to be created, but when action, began a space was opened and the magnetic waves creating a chain reaction as north and south poles formed direction other elements in nothing began to move towards the attraction or pushed away being of like charges. This motion then expanded, and nothingness froze the location and suspended it based on its balance of charges as the object grew and continued to expand, as other elements became attracted to it. The forces became greater and greater, until it consumed every possible element within the distance between. This increasing size has no weight relative to nothingness and only maintains weight upon its self-caused by the stream I referenced and explained as gravity forces. Those forces that are passing through the spaces between nothing and one another. Then colliding at the core. Causes extreme friction and heat. which too much heat and the magnetic field loses energy So, what a delicate balance it must be.

Therefore, the mass weight of a planet is suspended and has weight only upon its self-induced by the magnetic attraction to its finite. Which causes a force upon itself. As the attraction continues, the nothing of space it began within, induced by action, doesn't react and therefore, in the space of nothing experiences a weight based on the sum of its mass. Thereby, this force only exists upon the mass that the magnetic force is exerted upon. As it increases in size and strength, causes the influence on other bodies where it attracts them or repels them and as it increases in size, causes nothingness to expand. But, now with creation more movement is born, and more elements contain in nothing bring to the table of attraction or repulsion, thus, we are moving in non-specific directions randomly changing to occupy more space and are subject to that random energies being created. In reference the expansion of all universes.

We often pondered, what holds a planet, star, sun, etc., in space? Something of magnitude must hold it up, how can it possibly float? Simply put, it is existing once magnetic field is established and a core attraction begins, the nothingness of space which never had to be created opens and expands as the matter is now being drawn to it. This is creation (create –Action) and when movement begins towards its new established location the molecules and atoms attracted, begin to move through the fabric of nothingness or (space) between the fabric of nothing and once this event begins, energy is being transferred. This transference, on its way to attraction, is a force upon itself and has no weight relative to nothingness of space. But, as attraction continues and grows, the elements forced together only have weight to itself and therefore needs no support within nothingness' as the mass of weight is only the magnetic force traveling through nothingness to its attractor core. As it passes through the spaces between one another, is when energy is created. As mass increases, so does the volume of particles arriving begin to push on the surface as the drag from its transferring and giving up some energy of the spaces between the forming elements of a planet that that sum begins to accelerate the planets speed, whereby, a balance occurs. Mass over destiny, to where the magnetic core can no longer expand and its demand on attraction begins to slow down and maintain constancy. This spinning effect is the ying-yang rotation with a single to dual magnetic line of force that I illustrate later in this book. But, if it not so, nothing would rotate.

Creation continues when these forces began to align to their individual elements and organize that matter takes on frequencies that randomly adjust where the free will of these elements can life begin. But, the important issue in all life creation, is the fact that the form of the planet be in an area relative to the signals frequencies feeding it and constantly reinforcing the action. Coupled with the distance and temperature needed to exchange ice, created by the flow of the magnetic field, going in one end of the planet to the other, which will, in the presents of hydrogen, form the ice caps. As the magnetic field induced, travels from one pole to another it is compressed and accelerated, the acceleration causes the elements to freeze and the force of the freeze, because weight is only relative to the entity created by attraction, that begins to try to bring the poles together. (like when you take a magnet and align the poles they begin to accelerate, and you can't stop it until they collide) this force upon the planet causes a bulge in the planet from the all perfect circle. The bulge then begins to rotate and balance itself, based on the elements that arrived and forced together forming the substance of elements making up the planet itself. Combined by the event, that when this planet now grows, it begins to have an attraction to other magnetic energies nearby and this will cause a rotational motion along with a balance to nearby opposing or attracting masses. When this occurs, the rotation along with the forces acted upon the growing magnetic poles increases the speed of the magnetic flow in and out of the poles to the degree that the planet will rotate and move collectively and become organized, to the degree, that the bulge will cause the speed of the magnetic forces to speed up or slow down causing a friction within the elements of ice to melt or change from solid to liquid.

When water becomes liquid, it then allows light to pass through, this frequency causes water to vibrate and store the information of light and whatever water-liquid comes in contact with, transfers the information to whatever it touches. That code or frequency is what and why all living species will require water. As the vibration slows down upon contact, the molecules in water slow down and eventually loose the signal of information that was in light and needs to be renewed. Otherwise, life as we know it cannot interact and sustain itself without a replenishment of vibrating water on a regular basis. Or, all living things lose the information from water and get discombobulated as the saying goes. The living body loses this vibrating information and gets lost without constant information. Therefore, we need water every three days to stay functioning.

The dot representing nothing into something would not be present, unless, there was a movement. The movement is the north passing south magnetic fields. Once occurs, out of nothingness energy is born.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

All elements have space between them, and it is the field or frequency that travels between the spaces that energy is born. That tug of attraction, induces a pull or push we call gravity. Upon which the element itself, occupies space and takes on dimension. It is the very distance between these, that as the elements pass between one another, that create the friction and energy that induces friction along with the resistance occurs, this is how different elements have their known atomic weight. As the magnetic attraction traveling to its attractional pole that gravity is brought into and acting upon the core that attracted it, that created the need for motion that created then, the mass, making room in nothingness for everything.

Creation is bound by the frequency generated randomly by our individual "Trinity" and from our sun which is influenced by Trinity that the influences the rest of the galaxy, which is attracted by these forces. Whereby, out of size, weight, magnetic attraction of its own appearance within nothing. The energy generated and the space between its origin, is what organized and captured our planet by attractional forces and maintains its balance that we can exist and are formed, built and created by and through. Without this action nothing can exist nor will exist. Yet, we as a created species from these acting-reacting elements that organized and formed matter into species through the retention of the light carrying the signals into water that form action that we can even begin to comprehend our own existence. Coupled and in partnership with water retaining the signal and interacting with everything now created and in motion.

This random act, is by which until another greater or lesser force acted upon us that we mimic, imitate and react to in our daily lives. We as a species, have created nothing. Everything we invent, or so we think we created, was already possible and lives in perfection within the body of the DNA that formed us from the free will of elements in building blocks that traveled through us to the core from our sun and other bodies nearby. Those influences, I will now, as be promised, bring to bear upon the mental psyche of mankind. One needs now to check your ego at the door of creation in-order-to enter this next step into Creation!

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

Since everything is contained in nothing, then everything contained within all species has created nothing.

We mimic everything that our universe emanates, every known and identified frequencies and those we are not wired to see, feel touch or taste. But, I assure you, they are there and pass through the spaces through every molecule, atom, and matter on their way to and through our planet. Where there is water, the light frequencies are trapped and contained within the water waiting to interact and pass on the information to whatever it comes-in-contact with. Kind of like a memory chip. That's why water is a neutral agent to most things, it's why we use water in everything to create what is already existing in the waters retained information from the random signal being emanated from those cosmic influences. As it passes through us, we receive the frequencies that are then retained by the water within us. Passing it along to all living cells within our body. Here, a language and dance of frequencies allow for free will of the architect to build and create its own designs. And design they will.

Bruce Lee stated: "Voidness is that which stands right in the middle between this and that. The void is all-inclusive, having no opposite--there is nothing which it excludes or opposes. It is living void, because all forms come out of it and whoever realizes the void is filled with life and power and the love of all beings."

Who then is the architect? God? Our creator? What?

I'm sure I have your attention now, while every religion lay in the rafters pondering faith over a supreme being-in-charge of all there is and accountable in governing our individual lives. Is not a possibility on any stretch of an imagination. Since no one god has appeared and proven control. While history well documented the trickery and stunts to impress the congregation during religious gatherings. One must now to evolve our species, look to the reality of a random signal created from a random act, that order developed by the free will of everything contained within nothing. But, I am not advocating there is not a god. Rather the energy we have and the ability to communicate, using language, in its levels of frequencies randomly organized and generated, we can and do generate thoughts and exchange visions and move energy to and at some points, our free wills, given by the random order generated by the lack of any other word. “Spirit” Here is when the duality of energy begins to manifest, and when it observes itself, it then becomes the creator. These chemical and plasmatic occurrences uses the water and light to generate action and then finds order about its environment and begins to build a code within the code it has now access to. These repetitious generated frequencies coming from our universe. Thus, determines with free will, what it chooses to become. When it does this, it keeps recording and storing within the water the results. Out of nothing, it builds teeth, bone hair skin because out of nothing exists everything. The spirit receives the orders from the random creator and uses this to exist and manifest form and dimension.

I have said earlier that we invented nothing we only mimic that of which already exists within our bodies. Let me explain, this will require you the reader to again open your mind. And explore this in the many levels it requires before dropping it off to the wayside.

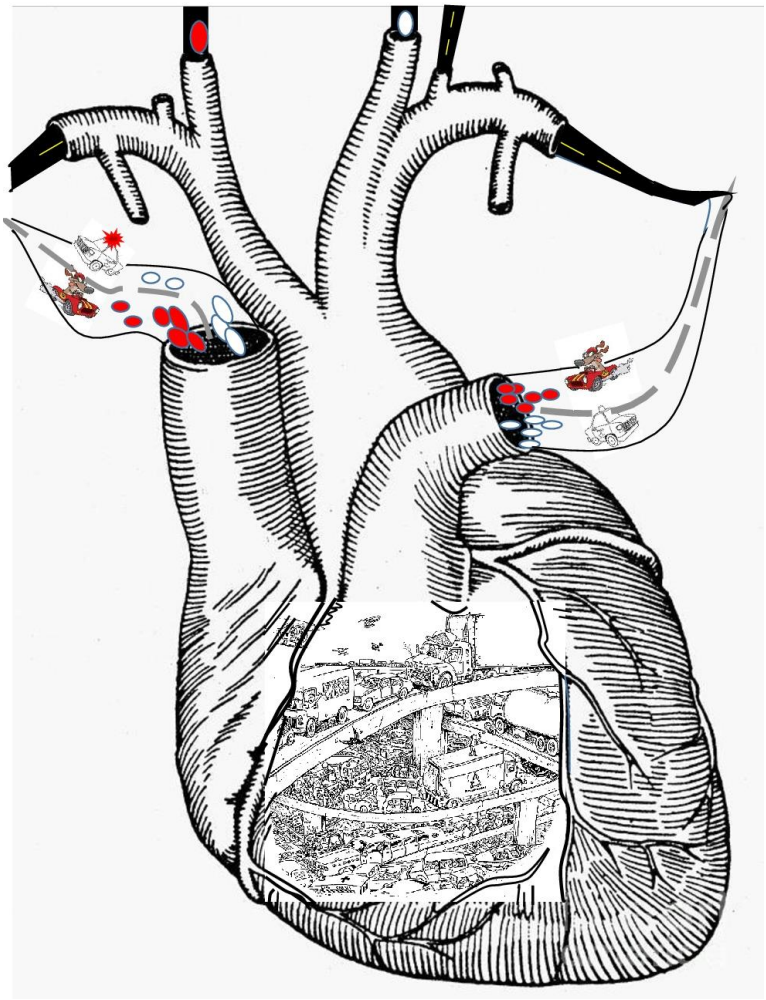

Everything in our outer world is resolved by man when they themselves find it a necessary evil or a necessity, that we need to solve, in order to keep us surviving. Yet, we may take credit for it primarily because we seldom stay in touch between the conscience and subconscious mind. Meaning our conscience self doesn’t know the language of the cells that live within our bodies. But, yet subconscious sends us information provides us with stimulation and inspires us in its language (frequencies’) however lost in interpolation by the conscience we invent and create more by accident rather by design coming from within. For example. I challenge mankind and now I must inspire women kind as well to show me one thing in the outer world of our bodies that doesn’t already exist in perfection in our bodies. The answer will be nothing. There is nothing in the outer world that doesn’t already live in harmony within our inner bodies.

First good example is: Simply put, within our bodies are cells within the cells is an entity caring information, going god knows where in the inner body to do god knows what. Step back and apply that in the outer body, are we not in a cell? Automobile, are we not an entity carrying information? Going to god knows where to god knows what in the outer body? Well there were cells that follow the frequencies of the sun and information within the water along with, believing they were wired to do whatever. Like build arteries and highways and byways within the body for the cells to travel upon. Well in the outer body there are cells (humans) that believe they are wired to build Highways and Byways and connect arteries for us cells in the outer body. And funny how we mimic this repeating frequency of information.

While we call these red or white blood cells, it is ironic then that in evening hours we designed in our traffic and in our vehicles when you drive at night you see headlights, white lights and or red lights. The cells within the body perfected this at creation. And passed it from the architect within, to the outer conscience. For to exist in the outer body as efficient as can be. Looking deeper, there are cells within our bodies that are wired to travel in those arteries and highways called red blood cells whom travel to stop, pull over, integrate other cells, deiced weather to detain, incarcerate or execute that cell of interest. As there is in the outer body people who believe their niche in life and are wired to be police officers, to pull over vehicles (cells) and determine the cells within, their information, and determine to arrest them, detain them or let them go about their way. And in some cases, yes, execute them. Bad cells are bad cells in or out of the body.

If you want to go further, let's look at, Firemen, they take up location in the city and dispatch upon a warning or alert. They grow up believing they are destin to perform this service in the outer body, well no surprise again, The cells within the body do the same they stand by waiting for alarms and respond by carrying water to the burn or heat applied areas and rescue whatever alarm needs rescuing. As in the case of real trauma to the body beyond the information of the cells to react to damage to the inner body the cells react with a secondary more elite force to react to the trauma, as there are humans in the outer body who take on addition information and education and training (more information) to be there in the event of real trauma to society. So, these humans are not any one thing different than any one cell within the human body. The body requires water to pass on the information and keep it viable and current for functionalism in the inner body and we in the outer body do the same. So, there are humans who take care of our water ways streams and water supplies.

See where this is going? As I stated find me an example in our outer world that exists that doesn't already exist in perfection in the inner body.

Another example and we can move on. Within our body, there are cells that take the energy and dispose of its non-useable particles and store them for delivery and recycle what it can, so I think you can now apply another example of cells that are wired to do this in the inner body as well as humans do this in the outer body.

But how does the subconscious come into play with the conscience and communicate this information received by the body that processed the information of the light contained within the water?

We will get back to this in a moment… First, I must spoon feed the conscience to distract the subconscious of the reader, so not to send messages to distract you the reader from me disclosing the fact, that, the sub conscience knows all and see's all. And produces all. And that it is the driving force that we exist at all. Ancients used this term to identify the All-Seeing-Eye. Within a triangle. 3 points as one. Meaning, TRINITY

We so long for the ability to communicate at the speed of thought with one another where man made wires, cables, and networks would permit a connection. In fact, and reality, that the event happened and is repeatable. We evolved our technology to a degree that the inner body gave up information of creation and the subconscious shared thought to the conscience of individuals that then created the computer. While we would like to think we invented a computer, it was already in place within the body communicating with the subconscious to the conscience. Of course, other sub consciences to one another across nothingness we call space. So, in the development of the computer, we now communicate to other conscience beings around our globe and even to artificial conscience computers in space, built by humans. Now, a thought read by an individual half way around the world seems totally normal now to generate. The subconscious has been doing it to other subconscious since the time of thought using the spaces between molecules to communicate with energy. Well now, two conscience entities communicate around the world they then generate in each other a thought and that thought generates energies and the creation begins and a universe is then created, existing the population of two entities.

The Spirit, as I alluded to is the self-realization of itself, once created and manifest thought, it takes on space and is. This awareness sparks a duality within and the spirit begins to organize. It establishes a design upon itself randomly, received by the frequencies being exposed to. Using the energy to build itself realization, this process, is random and constantly occurring to infinity, or, immortality as we humans define it. But, there is order in that once the species has created, it builds in a unique order of survival based on the elements it perceives. developing the tools of the creation to hunt, gather and process energy, dispose of the waste.

When the sun goes down the moon and its space block or weaken the frequencies reducing the volume of onslaught particles on their way to the core of our planets attraction. Species, or the Spirit, uses this then to use the energy gathered to boost the signal and communicate with the cosmos and other subconscious, this then is why we sleep. We don't really rest, our subconscious at sunset thereabout sends into the body, a chemical to place or subdue the conscience and when the sun begins to rise, the subconscious then sends another chemical to excite us to awaken.

This, the subconscious does to control us and built the structure within the spirt to-command the need to gather energy for survival purpose. Getting back to mimicking the inner body, we created the computer that processes energy, gathers data, information and operates machinery to generate out of nothing things we need for the conscience wellbeing and survival. The subconscious relays to the spirit in its own language with creating action and uses the structure built to survive and perform. We invented nothing. The subconscious provides and is charitable in giving us the insight premonitions and awareness of self, but, keeps it in check and balance not to overrun and destroy self. This random signal, is repeated numerically throughout creation and will until which time, action will come to a slow stop and creation will end. What will occur after than may possibly be a reversal of direction or field.

One more example and we will move on. The outer world has plants and trees species of all kinds living requiring water absorbing light and giving off and receiving energy necessary for us Humans (cells in the outer body as well as all living things) to exist. These trees, plants all have leaves, branches and stems with a main conduit to the earth called roots. And mimic as we do a desire for communication with all other species on their individual frequency, this network of trees and plants connect like wires to the earth and communicate globally. They create upon themselves and spirt and transfer through water and energy the process of producing globally the proper balance of Oxygen and nitrogen over carbon that control for them the conversion of energy. The wind vibrates the leaves and the signals are received and transmitted to the earth. Thereby, globally they control the balance of energy conversion for us cells to survive. Well, in the inner body, we breathe in to our lungs which have leave like branches with leafs that take the frequency of the air and sends the vibratory information to the tissues that control the oxygen balance for the cells within to survive. The tree grows proportionally the branches and extends it roots only to the degree that in summer it makes safe to prevent the evaporation of the water it needs. Then, in winter, drops its blanket of leaves to create a blanket to reduce the frost so it has water and communication to all others. But we humans, cut the branches permitting sun to enter and dry the ground up and rake the leaves at winter so they don't have a blanket to stop freezing the water. Man interferes with nature. An average adult tree will convert water to oxygen in the amount of 10,000 gallons a month. So, you see, nature creates order out of chaos to exist and we were created by that balance.

All this would not be possible, without the light random signal passing through water and water coming-in-contact with elements and interacting to deliver the possibilities. But, still action needs to occur and without the nothingness of space that possess the possibilities of everything could or would life be possible. Whether life exists or not, it is necessary that the plane by which water reacts and stores the random signal within needs a particular set of circumstances in order to interact and create action. Without the magnetic attraction created by stimulus within nothing, action can and will manifest an attraction and movement then inspires elements to be born and with that birth occupies space and takes on form and expends energy. That is the fundamental reality of creation. It's in everything its nothing without or within. Until movement occurs within nothing. That it is possible.

Some may assert that the cosmos doesn't exist without conscience man to observe it and that co-dependability is why we exist, and it exists. But, those that think that have mentally removed themselves from action.

In giddying, two monks are arguing standing beside a flag pole, one monk is at the level of yelling stating to the other Monk, "You're wrong the flag is moving the wind". The other banters back with a louder voice stating, "you're wrong the wind is moving the flag". Finally, a third monk passing by and calmly says to the two arguing monks. "You're both wrong your minds are moving". (Unknown Author) While we live steadfast and steady and to all outward appearances stable. We must remember that the earth is spinning and flying through space and thus Creates Action thus, CREATION. Thus, we are affecting other entities as they are effecting us.

"When the dance of life stops the music ends and- War Begins".

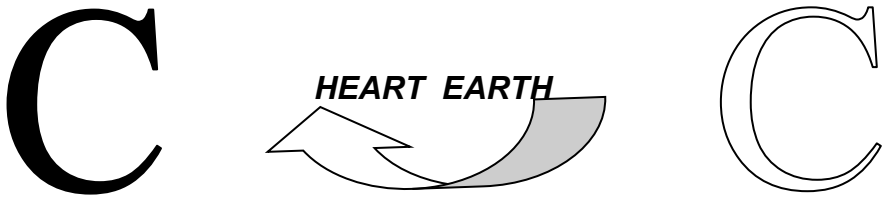

Astrology asserts and attests to explain and predict, Armageddon and the like, but a study of knowing our neighbors and the co-dependency of each other we must also in the same light realize that our sun is traveling around the Milky Way and we are being tugged along with it. And when we travel half way around the Milky , the magnetic fields will reverse as they have on earth because we are a product to this environment, called magnetism. When this occurs, molecules get rerouted speed up or slow down and our minds change processes and irritations, frustrations and senses are attacked and we feel separated from the creator and one another to the degree we can't process a simple thought without a sense of uncertainty. We lost the continuity and timing of the sun. When this occurs, I summed up the process to say; "When the dance of life stops the music ends and- then War Begins". The conflict of all this is based on our position and we are products to the magnetic environment and strength of those frequencies and so the process will always repeat itself.

Astrology knows the position of the cosmos and our neighbors and relates the position to our ability to process the frequencies when predicting future events. But, as we evolve if we can reduce the artificial process of using spinning magnets to produce electricity fields rather than plasmatic fields will we be able to escape and have natural thoughts and premonitions to balance our survival skills as a species on this marvelous planet we call earth. The great minds who predict our end use these elements of space to determine and predict our demise.

Inner World within us is HEART. Outer World is EARTH. Both having the same letters to communicate the importance to us from conscience to sub conscience.

In our English language, amazing the symbols of the letters we view through water and translate to an understanding that the word we use called EARTH, has the same exact letters of what makes the inner body function called HEART. So, one in the same. Our earth is the heart of creating action for both inner and outer existences. HEART for the inner world and Earth for the outer world. Both the same receiving their signals from the beginning of creation. All that is happening is the constant pulsing from north to south fields the "H" is in front then it is at the back of the word. Earth and heart the dynamic ying / yang that provides us our inner and outer home is one in the same.

The inner and outer body collide in an internal cosmic disaster triggered by man.

While science has observed the magnetic fields of earth both North hemisphere and southern hemisphere they discovered our magnetic fields change every seventy five hundred years as evidenced by the sedimentary rocks that are minerals magnetically influenced and with water and erosion bond together to form sedimentary layers and looking through time to the depth of the Grand Canyon can we see the reversing grain changes which geologists can determine time and the age of earth along with going to the southern hemisphere in the deep gouges there see the exact opposite. The earth changes poles and direction every seventy-five hundred years. Our north and south poles have changed and epochs show several polar caps moving every time approx. 60 degrees. This is a very slow unknowing process. But one that changes the frequencies of all things and cause and effects to earth and its stability. This cycle begins at 6,250 years to 7,500 years. A 1300 year transition between North , South, east and west influences. The Myan Calendaris the most accurate measuring system/calendar of cosmic events) whereby. It is a 25,000 year cycle broken into four parts of a circle containing in the four parts, of North, East, West and South. Having 6,250 years. Yet the calendar in years has a 520.833 year process of changing g from each magnetic field going around the Milky way. We read this in the sedimentary rocks that are containg minerals that have magnetic bonding properties.that form in the magnetic field direction and every change of magnetic field changes the direction the grain of sedimentary rocks follow.

Our planet is a magnet effected by magnetic fields. Man generates electricity for energy and light. This is not natural light. It is not natural energy but man made. We wired the entire planet with street lights. Billboards, neon signs. Inside lighting for our homes, businesses and outdoor activities. In every city, every countryside near cities. We have electricity on the surface. With power lines, power stations. Electricity is not natural. And when you follow the wires producing this artificial frequencies at the end of the line is a spinning magnet. We bury these electrical lines we run them over head and we generate nuclear power plants that send the frequency down to power stations and then underground again and overhead. Well. The entire earth is now saturated with spinning magnets. It doesn't end there in our cars are alternators generating electricity microwave's in the kitchen. Paddle fans in the home. Refrigerators ac compressors and light builds. Speakers with magnets and cell phones with batteries. Then we expect the natural magnetic waves going in one pole of the planet to the other to go around these new influences called spinning magnets to the degree it is changing the speed and frequency of the planets order that produces life.

The magnetic rules are simple. Opposite fields attract and like fields repel so with all these man made spinning magnets wired over the entire surface of our planet causes the natural magnetic waves to go around these obstacles thus changing the speed and direction altering the signal and causing irregularities in thought, functionalism altering life on our planet eventually changing our paths of our travel through the cosmos and beyond. Our Oxygen and nitrogen balance is being disturbed for plants and animals and we humans we breathe these molecules and relay on them as plants to process and maintain our species. But worst, our thoughts are being distorted by these changes. We now have windmills with giant spinning magnets in the higher free air these spinning magnets produce sometimes that of small cites and as a result definitely cause the magnetic fields further from the surface to be distorted and changing their speed and rate having to go around or are attacked to them. The frequencies of creation are altered. What we continue to process through evolution will be effected. Our own species is exhibiting it now by not identifying itself by gender or race. If we don't stop this unnatural act and return to the earth's natural timing and frequencies we will be destroy the dance of life and war begins. Not only outside in our daily environment but internally. The cells inside our bodies relying on the natural field to the earths plane will destroy and confuse the cells within and we will alter time along with the creators architecture random and all.

A power station (also referred to as a generating station, power plant, powerhouse, or generat ing plant) is an industrial facility for the generation of electric power. Most power stations contain one or more generators, a rotating machine (magnet) that converts mechanical power into electrical power.

Overview on the Worlds' Magnet Supply

Taken from a report by Dan P. Vukovich President Alliance LLC - 2004

The magnet market, when compared to others, is very small at under $8 Billion per year of worldwide sales. The usage, however, is overwhelming. Virtually all moving vehicles, computers, appliances, etc. use magnets. There are only 4 main material families and bonded versions: Ceramics (Fe2O3) consisting of about 4 main sub-grades Neodymium (NdFeB) consisting of about 40 sub-grades Samarium Cobalt (SmCo) consisting of 2 main sub-grades Alnico (AlNiCo) consisting of about 4 main sub-grades Bonded versions of all of the above all operate in Binary numbers and cause changes to natures Binary circuit. Called DNA.. or chemically referred to as C,T – A,G the paring of what is the natural binary frequency of all living systems on earth. No surprise here, it, being materials created from nothing following the binary signals and four dimensions and balance. That is all that we can make magnetic from.

Each type has distinct magnetic, chemical and physical properties. Ceramics hold the major share at about 60% of the total (in value), however NdFeB is the fastest growing market and it is estimated that they will hold about 40% by 2007. SmCo and Alnico share about 10% total for both. Bonded magnets are the fastest growing market in the automotive and appliance industry. These examples and manufactured man-made magnets would never come together naturally. Man forces them into existence.

During the past 7 years, magnet use for applications in automotive and consumer electronics has seen the most dramatic increase in its history. Today, the global consumption of all types of magnets is over 500,000 tons per year. Rare Earth magnets account for about 90,000 tons and $1.7 Billion. The main producers of permanent magnets are in China, India, Japan, Brazil, Europe, USA.

This report 2004 it is now 2017. While magnet production is highest in history in 2004, Global Markets and demands the magnets are in use and therefore once spinning have a greater effect producing electrical fields that are not natural and will cause the natural magnetic fields to be altered both in timing as well as in frequency.

The Pharmaceutical Industry. Studies the movement of cells in the inner body the Governments studies the movement of human cells in the outer body.

Meaning, The Pharmaceutical industry basically studies substances that can be brought into the inner body, the chemicals vibrate at different levels (frequencies inherent in nature which defines what they are). Then, studies where cells within the body take these. These cells in the inner body are trained or programmed only to take certain frequencies elements it encounters and deliver it to various parts of the body. Here science has learned the general order of the shipping industry within the inner body and uses it to lace these vibrating elements with chemicals, that, when taken to the desired location will fight infectious cells or reduce inflammation etc. So, the bad part is there are cells in the inner body that will take these chemicals delivered into the body by injection into the blood stream or by oral intake, while taking it to other areas that the chemical laced into the vibrating elements to areas that we call now side effects.

While, it is the science that defines the cells within the body by using this simple communication means. Mimics what in the outer body we cells do. For example. Fed EX, UPS, USPS are humans in cells (cars) traveling the Highways and byways and major arteries of our outer world reading with frequencies, bar code etc. and will deliver the package to a known location on earth. These human cells believe they are wired to do this in the outer body world. But, simply put, they mimic the system of the cells doing the same duties in the inner body. Because we receive the same signals and patterns and follow those. Both, consciously and subconsciously. Like in the inner body, if you leave a packaged delivered to your door on the step long enough a rogue cell (human) will then take upon them self's possession and take it to another part of the outer body it may not belong).

So, where then is our spirit or soul?

If you ever driven into a major city for example, as you arrive, the city takes on a persona to you. Stress from traffic, actions taken by motorists, you may stop to get lunch and interact with all the cells (Humans in the outer world) around you. Or, may rest in a hotel, and watch the evening local news and see the problems or if any good news of what's going on around you. At some point, your body records the energy you are experiencing, and leaves you small segments of impressions. After a while, you begin to blend in and discover the city has a personality. A culture and a life of its own. The accumulation of all these cells living among one another with or without your presence. Is a spirit of that city, or persona. Either rendering a favorable impression or not This is the spirit the combination of all the sum of all the cells that make up its infrastructure as well as demographic shape and size. All cities come in a variety of shapes and sizes. Like all cities, humans, come in all shapes and sizes and made up of the same conducting cells as a whole, Cells are born and die every day.

Within our inner body, the soul or spirit of the individuals made up of the many shape and sizes we come in, is the accumulation of the thoughts and energies of the entire person. This is the spirit or soul we gaze upon and experience interactions with and form opinions of. Like our outer world cells are born and die every day and whether inner body or outer body world. We all have in common the need to gather energy, expend energy, transform energy for survival. These combined efforts of survival take on a unique form and pattern that is observed whether as a city. Culture or person. One in the same driven by the same random signals.

So, if you go looking for the soul or spirit and try desperately to find an entity or particle, atom, element that is in control of the brain, or the heart, government center or the Earth you will never find one location or entity, it is the sum and mass of all cells combined within or out that make up the soul or spirit of things.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

When the energy stops, or magnetic waves change, the cells within the body react changing behavior or trends. As well as, in a city, the energy or spirit of a city is altered. The cells begin to die off leaving the spirit of the city or persons (cells) within the city or body of the spirit the entry made up of these masses that create a pattern of society or personality.

In retrospect, we invented the computer, or mimic what is in the body we refer to as the brain. On a circuit board there is a battery to maintain the information, letters, characters, symbols etc. along with images, pictures and graphics. This computer maintains a component within its system that receives the signals and saves them in a space provided so it can be accessed by commands. If the battery that is responsible for holding and capturing the information and corral it within the space called "Memory" when that battery dies finally, all the letters, characters, symbols images and the like, vanish, never to be formed and recovered again.

But where does the information go? Well it is energy under one influence or the other and when freed from its containment (Attraction) its energy is transformed and is reused. Returning into nothingness, waiting for an action (attraction) to begin again. Its model number, serial number, gone into oblivion. But, the file names, and pic's and recording etc. are disassembled and return to energy, never to be heard from again as it was when it was stored. So, in the case of the computer. Like the brain, there is a stored location for "Memory" and when the light goes out in the species, meaning death, the memory recorded goes through the same process and you and your memory of you no longer retain its recognizable known and observed by others form. Your energy and the light information within it are redistributed. So, in short, when your light goes out, you seize to exist and never will you reorganize the elements that made you. Our term, "reincarnation" has a particular lesson as well as reality. While we are energy and energy can't be destroyed it only transforms this transformation like the space on the computer will no longer house in a format, that individual collection of images, sound recordings, or information that made you unique. "As it was in the beginning, so shall it be in the end. Nothing without end."

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

So, lets attempt to gather the commons. And discover Creation. Out of nothing all elements and potential exist. Nothing didn't need inventing or creating. Nothing simply put is nothing, that lack of any other term "Space" the same Space between you and me, the sun and stars the cosmos and all its bodies. Nothing is everywhere. Nothing never had to be created. It is not a duality or a singularity. Within nothing, everything, every element exists. But, until movement occurs, that north and south passing is energy created.

In the case of our sun, the shape and size, personality or characters we observe is unique and transmits energy outward, while drawing elements inward through its attraction/repulsion of North and south polls. This attraction causes in nothing the potential to cause movement within nothing. At the passing of nporth to south light (energy) is in that moment created. Energy is forced to move. The movement then generates energy by its passing through the north or south influences based on its location relative to its distance from the source. Once now generating, its shape and size balances based in frequency and load (demand) whereby, elements now are attracted and moving accelerating to the attraction. As more and more elements coming from 360 digress and four dimensions collide they heat up and friction emits energy. A polarity or direction is established. (EARTH) as an example from the suns transmissions. The poles go in one end and out the other. As this occurs, several factors now begin to take hold based on the stored energy (charge) of north and south fields making it a magnetic of attraction. As the attraction increases, the mass begins to grow, with mass a stronger field also begins drawing more and more upon itself. Its mass increases and with that. The fields going in the North Pole and out of the south back in again. Will change their speed velocity and frequency.

Now, a Planet is established, as the frequency increases, the magnetic lines and force being routed over the surface of the planet, being directed into a smaller surface of the north pole and south pole causes frost to form, the frost become ice attracted by dissimilar temperatures balanced by the friction and speed of the attraction to its core of all elements that are now in nothing being influenced to take a direction and are attracted. They pass through what science calls dark matter and while passing close or far apart from the spaces within nothing. Energy is created. Just like with a magnet generator or alternator. Planet acquires all these elements and substances caused by transformation the size increases and so does the magnetic field. This field begins to force the planet to pull inward causing a bulge to the planet and again the magnetic fields change their speed and frequency as they attempt to go, its newly growing and forming surfaces of the planet.

The magnetic field is prime for the friction of all matter coming to the cores attraction heats up and increases in size. Magnets are weaker the hotter they become. So, a balance in the engine will occur. This balance will change the heat and give up energy forming an atmosphere and the frost at the poles will begin to melt and become water. When this occurs the light and all its frequencies now pass through the spaces of water and vibrate the water, but they become the memory cell for within the water the lights information. When water meets other elements, it is vibrating that lights signal randomly generated from the sum. This information is passed by the interaction of the vibrating water containing (building blocks) cells and they pass on the vibration in a form of communication to the elements it meets. This transformation of lights communication is persistent and regular and like a time piece accurate so much so. All elements are influenced and mimic its information and uses this information to build upon. As stated earlier “The Hidden Messages in Water” can life be born.

The earth has been growing changing in size as more and more elements obey the suns influencing signal brought on from Trinity and with growth, the shape of earth changes and goes through growing pains like we do. But, the magnetic forces cause changes in frequencies when the surface is altered. Or, when humans build bigger power plants with spinning magnets. That the natural waves are altered by going around these other man-made magnetic fields or attracted and pulled in. This, in itself changing the balance and speed that we all use to communicate with that creator. We are dependent upon the sun, without it, its signal stops, Life ends heart quits beating for the internal self as well as, the outer self-called Earth. This creator has no human reverences, it simply stimulates through its vibrating existence, a signal influencing from nothingness, Energy (light) but uses the nothingness to draw and extract all elements and causes action to be taken. Taking on a personality (Organized patterns). As I stated earlier, the sum of all cells in the body, is where the spirt is accessed and observed, so, in the outer body, a city takes on personality soul spirit if you will. Based on the sum of all its population (human Cells) and so it exists and generates light and energy it is that information passes through us on its way to the core that we believe in a creator. Which requires the emotion and rationale of the sum of all of its energy. That these now organized patterns are observed as a soul. A unique and identifiable force. One such force, has a characteristic behavior and dependency upon other elements to exist. Our thought communicates with this creator and we are connected. Our thoughts generated randomly within our brain influenced by the frequency of the signals does harmony, hate, and all other / reactions to our environment, do we then out of nothing-ness space in our brain, a thought is generated and takes on form and transforms energy. Then, occupies space, once occupying space, it exists dimensionally and therefore has energy to create. Creating our thoughts, follow the same order within nothing that everything impossible and every potential element can exist. Our thoughts receive the sounds from the attentive ear. “The attentive ear receives the sounds from the instructive tongue and the mysteries of life are unveiled”. (adapted from Freemasonry) All species, have similar sensors inherit in the information to build upon its self-it’s free will. Evolution of species change and adapt to these receiving features of all created lifeforms that are under the influence of the frequencies emanating from the universe.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

SO, what evidence do we have? What mathematical formula can we exhibit to explain? That all inspiring signal or generator called our creator? And many more questions will flow…

Within Nothingness. As I stated, is the potential of everything. Meaning until movement occurs, and fields defined or applied against, will action create. The magnetic action in what science calls Dark matter, (Nothingness) energy is created. When the movement passes between elements the tug or pull based on the locality within nothing will determine value or transfer into energy, for elements respond to the movement. When the movement begins, the tug or pull of the movement defines what is now created, since nothing is the parameter our minds will frame this in, then will space and energy follow the movement.

It is said, "you can't get something from ". Is errored! As is the saying, "I think therefore I am". Should be re-written to read. I think therefore I am… I think? In this case of creation or creator, getting something from nothing is incorrect. It is nothing-ness that everything potential can occur, all it takes is a movement in either direction relative within the areas balance's and load that action will take direction and exist.

In looking for the matter exchange and what all things have in common or follow the frequencies that the exchange from nothing to matter follows. It stands physically right in front of us and has been doing so since creation. Our ancient civilizations and cultures, some, figured it out, practiced and flows with it for health, prosperity and well-being. While all have created calendars, time pieces and the like to track, predict and or prepare for life and survival as species co-dependent upon one another, are the various cultures that keep our inner bodies flowing with creation. I now can explain how and why all things in creation. Both from the sub particle atoms making up our bodies, to the heavenly bodies as far as our imagination can carry us through the cosmos. Explaining how, Light, water, elements form from random signals that become organized and why they do this, I can now reveal. Had I just dumped you on the door step of creation without introducing to you the many factors and how they interact? Repeating back and forth over several pages of content was being done intentionally, to create in your mind the influences and comparison of a pattern within you, can now use your mind, keep it open like a parachute., it works better when it is left open. Could you even begin to form a concept of Nothingness. Which without it, everything could not have begun. Throw out now if you will, The Big Bang, the black holes. The dark matter and even an entity of human form in control of all the cosmos,

" Then and only then can you begin to realize your creator and the marvelous gift that humanity is destroying in the wake of greed, conflict and false frequency and signals, man made, that are not gifted from the creator itself. But rather, harnessed and improperly used to manipulate the masses while destroying the Earth and Heart that came from creation."

Early civilizations recorded in time. All evolved and learned while they searched the heavens and cosmos for the meaning of their existence. Which was entertaining for the conscience while the sub-conscience hid its greedy desires for us to hunt and gather to put elements from outer-world into the inner-world to give the sub-conscience energy conversion to travel the cosmos without the body, only using it, to store and have a lack of better word - GPS location in space using time as its constant locator. Cleaver as it is, and as we converse here, certain sub-conscious are sending signals saying to you ignore the man behind these writings. Like the movie the Wizard of Oz. Stay away from the light and knowledge or else you may find yourself the creator. In other words, ignore the man behind the black curtain.

Our Ancient Civilizations, before these man-made influences discovered that are now blocking our experiences with the true creator which the ancient civilizations tracked across the cosmos and began to understand it. They even duplicated the cosmos engine timing and awareness to its properties. They expended an entire energy system of human passions and labors that were stimulated by it and built the societies and enlightened those living in the society such, they harmonized the entire spirit of all the human cells that were engaged in its creation. Such as the Pyramids. Which, were nestled upon an aquafer where the water beneath it was deliberate crossing streams and flow as it returned to the Nile while aligned magnetically. In doing so. they exposed the water supply to sun light using light shafts directing the sunlight into the water as the streams flowed crossing one another. These are the canals under the pyramids and around it is the light shafts. Light as stated earlier enters the water with the creator's signals from our sun. and the magnetic field of the earth begins the rotational sequence of what forms life and creates it. The pyramids inside were lined in granite acting as insulators for this produced energy. And harmony of life. Those coming in and around the pyramids experienced harmony among the masses and health and propensity. Until which time, the earth's crust drifted and the Nile river moving with the earth crust, over time, the water stop flowing, causing the signal to weaken, allowing for the human greed and corruption to follow the least path of resistance whereby, Egyptian society was destine to fail. But, For several thousands of years their understanding and following the creators signal for creation were they able to see further into the eye of creation and survived that time without violence and corruption. So much so, that beautiful experience we all long to exist in of harmony and life was possible. They left us a map and example to know our creator and they moved their society from the pyramids in search of new locations, Following the magnetic telluric lines. However, I believe the energy fields were the strength and excitation of the people and when the fields demitted from earths location and the water moved from underneath and as our earth moved through and around the cosmos, they lost the production and energy to build again. But, They left us enough knowledge and knew very well it would return again.

The Mayans the Aztecs and other pyramid building cultures all knew this then and strived to build where the water beneath it's location and tunneled and directed sun light into its source would give them energy and prosperity and the signal generated harmony among the masses. As all suffered the understanding that Mother Earth and the Sun would make changes. Tracking these changes allowed them to know when a good time was to abandon their center society and move on. The Mayan Calendar is a living example of their understanding. Their temples built all on aquafers and all built access for sun light to influence. Make no mistake they unlocked the understanding of energy created by Trinity and understood their creator and knew in the heavens when the creator, (by the Sun's position of magnetic influences) would return and they again could live in the golden age of the light to prosper the species on this planet. The pyramids around the world prove this and remain in evidence to our ancient civilizations who understood it.

Today we, are reentering this cycle called by the Mayans "The Golden Age" meaning we are in the position in the cosmos where the strongest and greatest fields create. And we again have the exposure to build great societies both within and out of self and receive the information from our creator that gives us life. But now over the centuries and most recently these signals will be cancelled out by governments who understand this as stated earlier in my book, Manipulating us such not to look to the true light and information ordained in all of us and with the power stations and governments transmitting known signals cancelling our emotions and redirecting our energy by the building of huge antennas and transmission towers that are altering the natural signals. We will be like our ancient ancestors without the needed energy to create great accomplishments, expend huge energies to build and leave to future generations the true knowledge of our creator. Unless, we do as our creator who built us providing us the means to create-Action.

Presently, governments have built walls around the pyramids to keep any further researchers. China prohibits us from viewing them in the Forbidden Zone in China and even fences to keep us from the Stone Henge and hide the whereabouts of pyramids in USA and abroad. While, they discovered this knowledge and now don't need to build pyramids to transmit the signals to alter human consciences and control the masses.

In 1936, Hitler understood this knowledge and having resources that he did, had the organic signals coming from the Trinity and surrounding universe at 432 hertz and got the entire world to adopt it into their societies at a new man-made frequency of 440 hertz. It was only 3 years later the industrial world using these 440 signals went into world War II. Stating earlier I said, "When the dance of life ends and the music stops, War Begins." This altering signal disturbs the Trinity balance all the way into our thought conscience /sub-conscience beings and the environment around us. Down into the DNA that builds life in all living things now altered. In 20014 the world adapted the 440 hertz signal and made it an ISO standard globally.

My book while it serves as a repair manual to creation it sends the next signal in light from the creator. And that is Create Action-Create the Devine. You were designed in the likeness of the creator. So, now as the masses must do as the Egyptians did you must move from your declined energy fields and align yourself with the creator. Its' light and ever giving signal to create. But, here is where the sole purpose to explain Creation. Like the Bible, it provides in a more in- your-face reality of the code of life and what we are as species of this gift of creation and to not tread on it any longer.

It is hoped, you the reader, will now realize the "all seeing eye" "TRINITY" (three energies as one) A radio producing Star in the center of our galaxy with a East and West Magnetic star producing and interlacing with the radio star that makes up the frequency and defines the pulses that create action, thus creation.) and how the sacred geometry in nature signals create your inside world and you mimic it in the outside world across the planet and species of the planet that is given the gift of life. We can no longer continue with fossil fuels, man making magnets and producing the wrong frequencies to believe we can survive. Whether by our self, Soul, or in the masses. I implore you as the stimulus whore we have become. Stop now, in our path and create a new child and re-birth. For it is proven in all societies, cultures and depicted in all religions of the world but not written in today's terms. Having prepared you mentally and physically for the obvious that is in all of us, I can now reintroduce you to our creator. And in this book so cleverly named Creation it is hoped you will upon meeting your creator Create Action!

American Heritage® Science Dictionary. (2016) Defines binary as:

binary number system. A method of representing numbers that has 2 as its base and uses only the digits 0 and 1. Each successive digit represents a power of 2. For example, 10011 represents $(1 \times 2^4) + (0 \times 2^3) + (0 \times 2^2) + (1 \times 2^1) + (1 \times 2^0)$, or 16 + 0 + 0 + 2 + 1, or 19. The Leibniz was the first to publish it. He developed it around 1673. In 1679, he perfected the notation for integration and differentiation that everyone is still using today. Binary arithmetic's based on the dual system he invented around 1679 and published in 1701.

In mathematics and digital electronics, a binary number is a number expressed in the binary numeral system or base-2 numeral system which represents numeric values using two different symbols: typically, 0 (zero) and 1 (one). The base-2 system is a positional notation with a radix of 2.

The Chinese word, "gua" (as in "Ba Gua Zhang") is translated into English as, "trigram," or "diagram." The following is a brief explanation of its origination and meaning:
Yi Jing (I Ching)
"Book of Changes"

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

So what is a "Trigram" anyway?

DECEMBER 2 (2015) BY SHIFU AHLES

The Yi Jing, (pronounced "ee ching") or "Book of Changes" was written during the last generation of the Shang Dynasty (1766-1121 B.C.). It is based upon explanations of the origin, continuation, and future of all things: that all came from nothing (wu wei; the "void"), and everything is in a constant state of change. Within these explanations is the Ba Gua, or "Eight Trigrams", a philosophical concept that is a part of the "trinity" of natural principles. The philosophical trinity includes: 1) Yin & Yang (the two complimentary forces); 2) the Wu Xing, or "Five Elements" (the "balance" and "interaction" of these forces); and 3) the Ba Gua (the constant "changing" of these forces).

While the Chinese system is widely studied, used and practiced in modern day the system fell short of defining the manner in which elements, (5) went from within nothingness into existence and back again. They also used the system for health and connectivity to the heavens almost as s religion. However, The base and numeric factions are accurate in illustrating the binary communication and frequency signal from the sun that passes through everything contained in nothing. It also fell short of connecting the dots and describing creation and using it appropriately. Relative to living species that all are binary DNA based C, T, A, G products of this creator. And which we can now explore on common grounds.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

THE BINARY NUMBERS OF TRIGRAMS

The eight I-Ching trigrams are actually numbers written in binary code and the trigram numbers are in natural numerical order 0,1,2,3,4,5,6,7, so as the trigrams rise one above the other the number gets higher. The individual lines of the trigrams (and hexagrams) also rise one above the other, as the trigrams (and hexagrams) are built from the bottom up. The colors are arranged in the order of the chakras. And delivered on a stream of light.

Here the colors are light frequency used to make communications with the various parts of our brain, but, moreover, essential to understand just how close the Chinese were to discovering that science has alluded to define as a complete system of creation. I now introduce you to the correlation that makes this creation possible in all things. Without a big Bang or a mysterious Dark Matter.

Please note that the system here is dynamic in the Ying /Yang center and that it is constantly spinning. And all references are defined by location relative to North, South, East, West. The magnetic influences that draws from nothing everything.

Create Action the magnetic switching of North to south poles within nothing

In this complex diagram, the DNA is illustrated that one can see how the chemicals C (yellow) is attracted to T(Blue) and below or above that spoke of formation is the chemical A- (red) attracted to G(Green) the CTAG we track the binary functions and the code of life is discovered or written for humans to relate to life processes and its

Create Action. However, until now, we have followed the Chinese and other eastern cultures whom have a very deep understanding and appreciation for life. And followed not only science to the door of modern influences but through ancient civilizations. All observing the same thing but never integrating them fully as I now discovered. If you see the rotation of the Helix. You will note that its spokes follow the frequency and are stimulated to magnetic attraction and or magnetic frequencies that travel down the transmissions of light down and up our spine. In that, they follow the path of least resistance. And in their rotation, one can see the disc of the flat forming magnetic file, ls as it arrives, the field flattens out and when this occurs the spinning dynamics of what we refer to as Ying /yang. In their spinning causes vertical rise from the discs of the spinning ying-yang emerges the helix and the parallel lines of North and South causing a bridge to be formed out of nothingness. Action (energy) is created and thus the spokes get the stimulation when they pass polarity within the illustrated Tri-Gram binary signal and the bridge chemically is connected. Because the bridge gets connected as rotation occurs on the helix parallel lines of force when it flat disc's contributes spinning, it passes to the next trigram or polarity which each helix is phasing from north to south and so the second action of binary occurs with the forming of The A to G chemical attraction. These abbreviated letters of chemicals stored in the body. This continues and the DNA helix with free will builds its own creation. drawing from its resources within the water that we are. Records in the strings of the trunk of the helix the entire record transactions. (it also is how Tornado's, hurricanes, water spots obey the same pattern generated.)

That stream through into the flattened discs of magnetic appearances from Nothingness an action or event occurs and then the dance of life begins. Action has been created and is in all things and in nothingness waiting for action. During this process the DNA as it forms its spoke across the north and south, like a magnet. One bar has a North and a South Field contained in one form. And when it occurs it draws from oxygen and Nitrogen attracted particles and bridges them as antennas to receive within the water molecule the light frequency that commands life. As it rotates in the Ying and Yang, movement and rotation each stem formed makes the connection and retains its memory within the oxygen cells attracted to the CT or AG and then constantly receives the signals from the universe. our random creator of all things. The great and primary source of that luminary. Life is Created.

I profess, that taking the DNA double helix and placing it in an imaginary vertical line from the Flattened magnetic Discs that is in nothingness waiting to exchange its energy begins movement that then from nothingness elements chemicals etc., follow the will and manifest by attraction and come from nothing to be something. And so, I illustrate this complex function which really requires no real form of energy as we describe it, as it is magnetic. Which holds in influence what we call our galaxy.

You are now viewing a cross section of what exists within one magnetic line and how it operates to create action. Creation and everything within nothingness is possible. Modern Science only goes as far as to state and show the magnetic lines of force and we use this to inductively snatch from the creator and use a portion of the creator's signal to make man-made electrical devices. Using only one side of the magnetic poles. We generate artificial energy we call electricity. I went deeper to understand and discover what is in one magnetic line of force. My experiments and research reveled that within one magnetic line, if you created a cross section you will find. The Ying Yang rotating signal of two poles traveling within one magnetic line running in parallel to the Trinity generating signal while rotating.

This discovery I call the "missing link" and applying this discovery to everything allowing me to connect all of creation.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

I maintain it is in nothing and is everything. Every element of potential every possible combination that can and will be called upon and once an attraction is establish atoms obey due to attraction. When the attraction occurs movement (action) is created and all things possible. Thus… CREATION Create movement and from nothing-ness the creator will manifest.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

It has been staring at us for centuries of thinkers and innovationists. I propose that while science claims the core is the thermal geomagnetic source and it is cooling down is one explanation. But. If we revisit the beginning of this book it shows us the full picture. Our planet was struck by another body we are metals and materials that when struck created a magnetic charge. As particles in nothing remain nothing until movement or attraction causes them to come to the attract. It was that charge that made earth unique. In that, as more and more particles came flying to the earth magnet. These particles are so minute that they pass between vast spaces on the atomic level. And exchange energy. But, it is the colliding at the pole that the earth's core heats up from these collisions. Which explains why we have a molten core. And the more material added the stronger the magnetic field becomes. Such now, the magnetic lines going in and out from the poles are constantly changing as the earth continue to grow. This ability, speed of energy to go from in one pole and out the other, is what changes the molecular vibrations of all elements within nothing. Such that, the magnetic field begins to put pressure on the north filed end and the south field end that increases to a degree that causes the planet to bulge at the equator. (as these opposite poles and are attracted to one another) This pressure grinds on the plates and causes some of the earths crustal changes. The speed of the magnetic field and its vast volume being drawn into a smaller geographic location, North Pole, South poles speeds up the closer it gets to its core and causes the hydrogen and nitrogen molecules to develop frost when in the presents of hydrogen and nitrogen.

The other earth process attributed to the magnetic fields and the constant flow of particles flying towards the core by attraction is why there is a core. And the thermal exchange makes the fields heat and cool that either make strengthen field and a weaker field. This process is accelerated when the sun warms the face of the crust during the earth's rotation as the dynamo it is and causes the plates to heat up and the core temperature adjusts. And when the sun goes down, the tug from the moon pulls the plates up and cooling begins. In addition, the moon blocks some of these particles that are traveling to the attraction of our poles. This balance keeps us turning and the magnetic lines generating plasma fields with magnetic ying and yang. That, when goes to surface, flattens out and becomes a disc. These discs are influencing our bodies how we think and process and how the body reacts to inner changes as well as outer changes. It makes us who we are. As the Plasma is generated, it travels its path of least resistance heat to cold. And those surface discharges pass through us going to the outer edges of the magnetic field that surrounds us. (Lightening discharges)

The earth is a dynamo engine. Created when it became magnetized. And when that occurred in the nothingness action was caused. Life now awaiting born.

This magnetic field I maintain in its cross section depicted above with the poles and polarity exchanging in a dynamic manner. This cross section illustrates the rotation within every magnetic line. And when water encounters light from the sun the frequency vibrates as it passes through water, the water meets elements, and materials and when contact occurs. It causes whatever it encounters to vibrate at the store rate within the water.

We need water for many functions of the body and when water is used by the magnetic field generating through us the water slows down and stops vibrating and the cells within our body lose the information, this loss, causes chaos within the cells depended upon the stimulation from plasmatic energy to chemical energy and sense of direction. Without the magnetic field creating the frost at the poles. And the core heating up and cooling melting the water. The information in the magnetic lines and force and the frequencies f the intellectual pattern signal from our sun could life ever of begun, but, once it did, It was the dynamo action and the waters light information that organized the random signal that the double helix was able to form. And once action began creation was formed for life. All the conditions for a binary communication network globally being produced and radiating in and out of the poles. Yes the right temperatures were needed as well and that had t do with the right size and field strength of the planet earth and its position relative to the sun . relative to its location from Trinity. Thus, the conscience self could of emerged. It is this we find our creator and all that it emanates. Along with the need to communicate back to the source that it lives within us, passes through us and gives us life. Providing us with a sence of connection with the creator. “TRINITY”

Try to see the diagram with the trigrams and realize the importance the Chinese discovered in the binary pattern, see how they discovered the dance of life and the Ying and the yang rotating in a dynamic synchronized frequency, that, the double helix could of formed and the chemical elements drawn by magnetic attraction would attach to the flatten surface discs and begin to rotate and draw from nothingness to create action and life

So, can life as we know it exist elsewhere? You bet. But it will require a planet in motion with a magnetic field such intensity to cause all matter to come flying towards its poles and collide and cause friction that would fuse the elements as they collide. Then the outer surface create the distance and timing to cause the speed up of the magnetic fields to frost. And as time goes on the frost melts and light passing through will have its unique signal generated by the random light of its sun that the Dynamo engine would cause rotation of the ying and yang. And being in the right thermal distance and planet thermal exchange that life will create. The variations are endless and infinite as to what it can create. Evidenced by, our planet having over 16 billion differate variations of life and we discovering more and more every day. So, I am certain the creator is in nothing maintaining everything. And given the right circumstances life will begin.

If you look through our history of evolution, setting aside Darwin’s theory. Or at least some of them. You will discover a direct correlation of earth’s magnetic poles changing. Strengthen and weakening as we rotate around a greater magnetic force called the milky way. Which are a discs magnetic dyno following the creators frequencies and obeying the commands coming from nothing. As we are drawn by our host to follow those magnetic lines of discharge for the engine of our burning sun, which is influenced and created by Trinity and lock in the boundaries of that influence. creating the light and frequency that random matter will follow and create.

As we journey along the paths, Destine by creation, not just of life, but the cosmos. The properties I describe are inherent in nothingness that created everything. When a planet or star is born it is from the collision of magnetic attractions that from nothing action is given direction and the laws of attraction bring the building materials to come together. But, in nothingness there is no weight only upon the forces being drawn to the magnetic materials that make up the entity. There is no distortion of space or nothingness. It simply gives way as it takes in dimension and thus causes expansion of the nothingness that is without a boundary.

If you can embrace the physical realm of which I describe and allow your inner self to compose in your confidence of its origins. That it depends on for your inner and outer worlds of survival. As a provider, then you can except that it has all the knowledge to out of nothing create the hardest materials in bone teeth and substances that it developed in the act of creating upon its self the necessary survival elements of its needs and uses in order to exist as you. And that applies to all species and living things. As everything is under Trinity influences.

For the illustrations I provided above of the cross section of just one magnetic line of force. And realize its power and dynamic energies while for most incomprehensible or herculean a task to digest. You will find the deeper closer connection to what makes your existence possible and the endless possibilities you command. Realize we have invented nothing or created anything that doesn't already exist, and we mimic that which already exists within the inner world of every species and living creation. Realizing, constant renewing of energies constantly phasing in and out is visible in the heavens, earth, as well as, the inner universe. Visible by the cosmos and universes and galaxies that are a disc's flattened and rotating and the science model claiming it as white star center, or a black hole is merely the ying and yang of the magnetic field that created action and rotating from Black to white (north to sole) light necessary for all creation. For it not be that way. Action would never have happened and without motion nothingness remains nothing but the possibility of everything it is contained just make motion and Creation begins.

The next jump you take here will be of your own self. Listen to your body, your mind conscience universe, explore by getting as far away from power lines. Power plants other man-made energies, that are altering the timing and frequencies that created you and look at the outer world and you may discover how much our electronic age has generated an artificial signal that interfere with the signals of creation. You will find these sources alter everything possible and are responsible for the chaos that it generates. Later, balances and becomes organized. We are going to continue as s species destroying all other forms of creation and have altered the sequencing and timing that so motivated not only our species, but, provided the ability to balance with the rest of creations.

Evidence you say? What physical evidence can you provide? Why you and not someone else. Where or how can you see this and not others? Where is science in all this?

These are typical questions that a disoriented person will ask because of their influence by the artificial energy we call electricity. In our homes we have paddle fans overhead, a refrigerator motor, a micro wave oven, garbage disposals, electric dishwashers, lighting, air conditioning, water heater, computers, cell phones, in our automobiles are alternators, fan motors for heat and air conditioning charging the DC storage battery. And yes, all have spinning or stationary man made magnets and forces. But, if it was not for the spinning magnet that generates this unnatural current we use called electricity, that when you follow the wires, at the end will be a spinning magnet that mimics the exact diagram I illustrated earlier it has to follow the natural laws. Because our man-made magnets and storage batteries, we have now, over produced them to the degree that the natural magnet of the earth which emanates in everything from the primary source of our universe. is now having to go around and through the man-made energies and these are effecting our thoughts, their processing and even altering how we breathe and process this frequency, which change is warming our planet. Disturbing the earth's engine timing and that alters its performances. Try changing the timing in an automobile engine and the results is the same it heats up. Or gets colder and losses power, Again, we developed the generator/alternator. It is a mimic of bringing from nothing energy that is contained within to a disc type receiver and through spinning it developed thermal converted energy from a magnetic line that has and contains a north and south moving field.

Computers for example, early on, transmitted in light information that was processed and slowed down from the speed of light, so, humans could observe the information contained in light, This slow down caused the light to heat up and we needed air conditioned spaces to cool the heat sinks in order to store information in electrically produced frequencies, well, as man got use to processing these signals observed by sight and sound. The mind adapted, and we could now increase the speed up closer to the speed of that light carrying the information and thus the computers became cooler to operate. However, the storage battery would heat up absorbing the light. Now computers and humans multitask through evolution of the exposure and the species has adapted. We don't need electricity as much, but rather, can shift and turn on and off switches with next to nothing of man-made electrical systems, by reversing with those switches magnetically. This has revolutionized and allowed for miniaturization for convenience. We think we invented it. But, I assure you, it was always there in the natural signals of creation. We only mimic this great system.

When you look at the fact, that in the early days, if you shut off a computer from its light generated energy. (Unplugged it from the city power station) it's lost all the information. Later we discovered, by placing a small charge like a wrist watch battery on the circuit board, we could keep the information contained in a specific location and space. Despite the loss of electrical power earlier we needed a battery backup system and now it has been replaced.

Which, we now see that in all living things we store a battery electrical chemically that keeps the files information stored and when that light goes out in the body. The information is discharged. Same as when the battery on a computer goes bad the information is lost and unrecoverable. Yes, unlike humans, there is no battery backup. But where does it go? Where do we go when our light goes out? Well, it is disassembled, and returns into the void of nothingness awaiting again for action or movement when then it will be reassigned. We are energy and when the light goes out we are reassigned. Here on earth, if, we continue to alter this balance of light and water. Our bodies and all living things are altered. The love affair we have for electrical convinces, the automobile (combustion energy) will be our destruction. This has reached epic proportions so much so we are uncertain what and who we are and gravitate to the artificial signals generated by man not creation. Creation will cancel us out. Natures forces are renewable and everlasting a world without end….

More and more examples? Tuff to move on. The electrical fields that have been altering us since Thomas Edison invention to Alexander Graham Bells first transmission both required the use of developing a spinning magnet to produce the results. And in Alexander Graham Bells first transmission in his invention which made an electric coil into an electro-magnet he transmitted the first message ever " look what God Wrought" Today, as I said earlier, our new generation of children are now attracted to these man made electronic=magnetic devices. (Light)-Green, Blue and White frequency spectrum. There are so many of them, we have over built permeant magnetics that our children exhibit an attraction to them they multi-task and mimic as syntonizers, their bodies signals and it is now electro-chemical addiction for them, they can multi-task, but difficult to come up with ideas of their own. They merely copy what already has been done. In addition, they are confused and uncertain in their own creation what sex they should be?

This is as alarming and in comparison, to earlier generations, who felt smoking cigarettes was harmless and it created an addiction to the body. Such, we finally took measures to reduce and eliminate its access. So future generation's mark my words will all ban and limit access to the electro-magnetic stimulus of our electric society. For if we fail we will transfer our own species and the species of all living things on our planet to a point of dependencies and alter the natural order that created out of nothing.

Much has been reviled. Your inner body has processed the thoughts you have read through the water on the lens of your eye. And the light and images of language you have despaired a thought that I hope this book has created. Look around you now at everything within you and others. See their light and learn their spirit. (the sum of all the cells within a soul or person) listen to the frequencies and create action in yourself and you will discover how much you are loved and embraced by the creator. It is inescapable, you will discover but then look to the outer world, and compare what you see, compare it to how life in all species are adaptations or mimics to what the creator has designed. The Great Creator of the sun and all it illuminates. Hence the Great and primary object that emanates in all things. This has been discovered in all ancient civilizations and preserved the I Am presence. When civilizations mysteriously ended. It was the magnetic fields that dropped as earth moves through and around the Milky way being influenced by Trinity's ever-changing signals of energy and light, that the understanding and awareness of the ancient civilization's (ancient civilizations moved with the change) It has been kept and secret by those civilizations. Our ancient Operative Stone Masons knew this and realized the spaces within stone and it was a living enity. And harnessed the energy and aligned them to direct the magnetic signals of life for their properties. And todays Freemasons use the symbols and allegory to illustrate those same means to build strong and better men. The processes and teachings that brought civilizations to best work and agree with one another. To that the rise and fall of the civilizations are fought when the frequency's change in magnetic fields. And harmony gets out of Sync. Thus, my conclusion statement.

When the music stops, the dance of life shall end and war begins. In to her words, when the magnetic frequency changes we become distorted and mental processing changes with the signal of creation and life. The body reacts and feels the drop of this signal and we become irritated. And the dance of life shall end. Then the signal changes and war begins. So accurate, along with those that studied the stars knew our astrological position and knew when we again would pass through the changing magnetic and opposite field. Harmony's opposed it, dis-harmony. When we are not happy we blame and will fight others for nothingness!... This is Creation. Create Action and from nothingness we came and nothingness we will return. Immortality, the I am Presence of self can ascend in light and our light looked upon by , will immortality of self be spoken by others and the image of us captured in light, will we be remembered in society and loved ones. But not until, we move into another frequency in the cosmos will change take place. Or created another action. Or, will we have a chance to adapt to the speed and frequency now being influenced by modern man's addition to electrical energy rather than that of the creators. That will we evolve into what we want to proclaim us as intelligent beings.

How old are we? How long has creation taken on our planet?

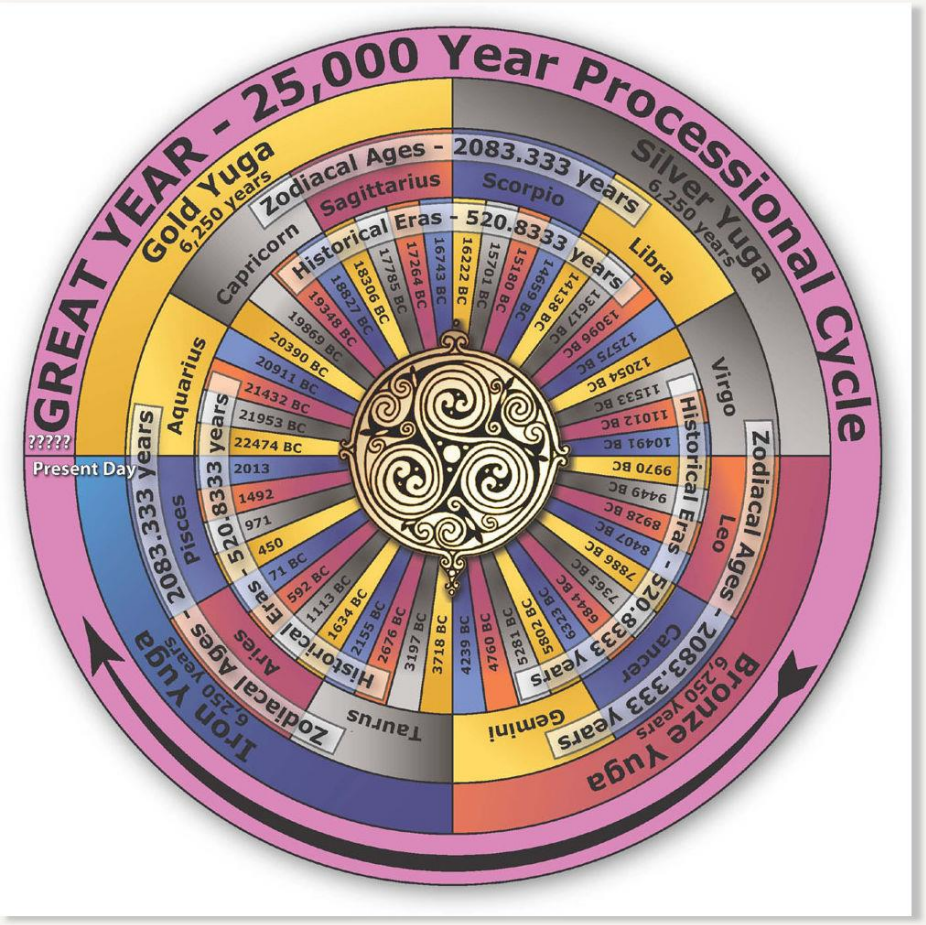

Science has attempted to create a dating method so far, we can't age rocks. But we can age organic material, but we use Carbon 14 to do so and it is a method of deteriorating organic material against the half-life of a Carbon 14 atom. Well, science gives carbon 14 a half-life approximately 50,000 years. I don't know of any laborites that watched a particular carbon atom for 50,000 years to determine if that particular, atom, lived that long. So, the scale is skewed to being accurate. Some science claims we are as I said earlier in the beginning of the book some 14 billion years old. So, claim the rocks, stones, mountains and valleys were carved out by billions of years of evolution. Where water ran violently over them for millions of those years. While others state, it was a violent event quickly and the years eroded the damage to the state we see it today. Well, that's like the chicken and the egg theorem.

The best evidence can be found in stone, when clans or tribes of people began to build with stone tools, hunt and create useful items for day to day use. They try to bring it into biblical times and events from the Bible. Like the great, flood. As though it is the center point on a line graph. To measure everything from. While a great reference. Extremely intelligent civilizations and moral systems predate the arrival of Jesus as well as other Saints. But King Solomon as far as everyone agrees was the first in time recorded with a complete Moral and economic system and society with artifacts dating them without Carbon 14 means. Egypt influencing King Solomon by 2000 of our calendar years. And yet, we have the Mayan Calendar recording 25,000 cycles predating their reference points based around 360 degrees. This calendar so accurate, positions us in the cosmos of our Earth going around our sun going around the Milky Way. And they well understood the magnetic lines and forces that govern prosperity among those living in masses and civilizations.

The Mayans' like the Egyptians built their temples and pyramids that they rested upon an aquafer with moving water. Where light shafts allowed the sun light into the water and this movement of water through light generated energy and frequency's that were settling and productive to all living things. As the plates and the planets magnetic forces (opposites attracting) the north and south poles getting stronger every solar cycle, began crushing the earth as the poles begin to draw into each other. Thus, the earths bulge. Causing the plates or plate tonic grinding and sublimating of the layers of the earth. And the aquafers drifting with these surface plates. That the aquafers no longer lied underneath of the temples and energy was lost. The Mayan and Egyptian societies left their areas in search of newer magnetic fields. So, this process can be measured, and age of civilizations can be better determined. But for now, it is important to understand how they could intelligently understand mother Earth the heart of the Universe. The Mayan 25,000-year calendar completing its cycle on December 12, 2012 is ac curate as to they knew our position in the universe as the Egyptians knew and knew mankind would go through several human changes in health and prosperity based on the magnetic fields we pass through as we are pulled around the sun and the sun pulled around the Milky way. Remember, without motion creating action, this would not be possible. Creation would not be formed.

We are at a great time in the Cosmos. We are leaving the Iron Age according to the Mayan Calendar, entering the Age of Aquarius. and thus, entering the Golden age once more. Here, the magnetic waves which created the most specular creations by humanity and stimulus of creations man made of the years I tend to believe as the most accurate means of dating so far. The further and further away from the influence of the Milky Way, such the frequencies are changing, that's what triggers adaptations in species as well and all living beings. But now, a more serious element not following the Great Creator of the Universe, was man making and bringing elements together that would not naturally of come together and these man-made magnets and the spinning magnets that make electricity.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

We have now become synchronized with a stronger element and interference to the natural frequency's that's create us. The magnet poles are having to go around these as they go from the North to south poles. And when that occurs the frequencies are interrupted by distance and timing. Changing their natural order of every molecule that comes influenced by it. And so, we now are creating actions like the creator, but not by natural selection. And or an organized unified manner. This energy is scrambling and changing our thought conscience universe and our abilities to process natural thoughts. Our moral compasses are deviating from its origins. We are Creating Action, thus, will be a new creation. One we don't have the understanding fully of and thus should not be dwelling in.

YOU CAN NOT DROP A ROCK IN WATER AND GET ONLY ONE RING!

I have said this forever. You can't drop a rock in water and only get one ring. This fundamental law applies. If you think in the terms of what I have provided as an image of how from within nothing everything is contained. Here is another way to look at it. If water has all the elements within it as nothingness has. Then just by a motion (action being the rock dropping or moving within nothingness) then you can see how this effect applies fundamentally to everything. And the cause and effect once creating action occurred caused the same within nothing to continue. Note the disc's action when the exact moment of action applied to nothing that everything was influenced and that event line as we measure it began. Also note the physical movement is in sync to the ying and yang magnetic field that caused the action to begin. An action passing an opposite action is creation of energy that then, causes rotation. That's' why a bubble is round, Galaxies are round rotating discs That's why you drop a rock in water you get a ring.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

The mere imaging thought I am stimulating in fact, is just a mimic of creation. Meaning it mimics the law of creation. Create action and creation begins. Remember in this analogy the water contains the the elements. And so, the spaces within H20 is so vast the sun's light passes through like the fabric of the sail transmitting its energy exchanging its energy and converting it as an influence. As it passes through, creating a force of what holds things to close proximity to the core of the magnetic attraction. This is seen as far as the human eye and its satellite and telescopes have brought us.

There is no difference in water than there is in nothingness, just the measureable space between its attractions that holds it into a dimensional presence. More than the human eye is synchronized to see.

LET US SEE THAT WHICH IS REALLY THERE

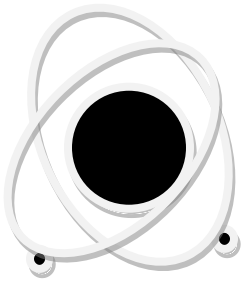

So far, it is known that all matter and particles that of which can be detected my man travel in waves, they are particles as well, so mass in volume, they make up various clusters that are magnetically attracted to each other. take on larger substance within nothingness. But now, are detectable by man. We call these- vibrating elements. (Why are they Vibrating and not rotating around the molecules?) Well, they are constantly being struck by and smaller elements of light passing nearby their spaces that they are constantly be moved.

We were taught in school, that the atom and its protons and electrons are orbiting around the nucleus. However, I propose this is not true despite we still teach it. Rather, the main element now occupying space and expending energy attacks other elements freeborn and when they become attracted and caught by the charge they begin vibrating and phasing from north to south, south to north. Which are the poles of a magnetic field which contain the dynamic ying and yang disc formation. Since, light is a wave and a particle within the wave its light attractions phasing north to south and south to north again, when this occurs we have what science calls a Quantum leap. Where the element is at attraction of our second in time in both places at the same time, between the attractions, holding it in charge. So, light can be a particle and a wave. So much so, that when the mass attractions begin to grow, the magnetic pulsing speeding up and slowing down create the wave like in water. While they are traveling to the greater magnetic charge causing them to create an action. This wave rises and peaks within its boundary, so that it rises, and falls based on its mass and elemental weight occupying upon its self-causes a synchronization pulse, we refer to identifying this as x-ray, gamma ray, radio frequencies etc. Also creating in its motion what we call solar wind. Light particles moving and gaining mass speed and vibrations moving other elements out of the way. Similar to just before the rain falls we feel the wind speed up caused by the rain drops occupying space and traveling pushing the air molecule's out of the way.

OUT WITH THE OLD … IN WITH THE NEW…

Old school model of atom with orbiting protons and electrons example

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

My model showing phasing from north to south and south to north again making a complete cycle in parallel rather than orbiting as in old school model and with a ying yang disc's within a single magnetic line. (as in a cross section) Thus, atoms and electrons as well as protons etc. are disc in shape not round. One ca now see how a particle can get caught by a wave and held in captivity and when done so, matter is created. Taking up space, manifesting form and expending energy. (creating rotation)

In my model above. The protons are at different distances from the atom as their masses are different in size and therefore phase accordingly jumping the discs from North to south. And south to north again. Which is why science believing the atom and proton and electrons orbited because they saw evidence of them being here then there. Rationalizing they must be orbiting. But, that would not allow the physical explanation of how a light wave can be a particle as well as a wave. In the case of the old school model, it would simply be one dimension with no possibility other than its mass.

If you can see in my model, that now all the phenomena that science could not explain nor define as gravity, dimension, dark matter etc. following this old school model one would keep writing mathematical expressions making formulas to make the atom fit to their reason and beliefs. But in the case of my model it now explains everything in creation and how life can build and form.

When you use this model and challenge it, you will discover an easier path to understanding how, out of nothingness having the potential of everything within it. Having no dimension of taking any space can with just a magnetic push or pull within create a chain reaction and the particles of matter and elements of energy respond from within nothing and thus are created. Create action thus creation is born.

When applying this to light and water you now have the building blocks that can create living organisms. The water receives the frequencies of light and stores in in water. When water encounters other material it begins its vibrational dance and within the expansion of the energy in water harmony prevails and life manifests using the light and converting it to a food source to expend energy. This is the fundamental building blocks of life.

So, it can exist anywhere. That there is a Light frequency transmission emanating. Influencing everything within nothing in space. And arriving at an greater magnetic attracting capturing it and this then causes other particles to attract the now established poles and them colliding and fusing together. The heat and location from its source warms such, creating a dissimilar temp that causes the elements to form and make water. As the poles get stronger, the axis of the magnetic pole increases and begins to pull inward causing a bulge of the mass, and the speed of the magnetic field in time, will speed up at both ends this will cause a freezing of the colder molecules and frost. Ice forming at both ends of the poles. When this occurs, the water made into ice slows down the vibration of the light. And so, when it melts again in its cycle around its influence star. Life can and will be born. This creating action causes creation. Now and forever more. Until, the light that harmonized all things within nothingness' fails or uses up all materials to emanate light energy.

Light is the creator, manifestos of all things possible within the nothingness'. (I want to inject here not to forget that the light particles and the nothingness particles those of which, as so minute, that we can't detect them, and are so masses in numbers coming at us due to the attraction of our poles. Banging into and smashing creating friction which we experience as heat) or missing other particles and passing near them between their spaces causing colder energy to be exchanged as they are on their way to the core of attraction in our planet). The right speed and frequency will travel in the fusion that is the only fashion possible a dynamic magnetic line containing the north and south field. Coming in contact to its creation of water, nitrogen molecules. When the friction of colliding particles travel to a stronger magnetic mass can light pass thru the water and water retain the vibration frequency of light, which sets up the environment possible for organisms born out of stimulating energy and mass. Here is the moment of life. And life retaining dimension occupying space and expending the stored energy to have movement and develop environmental processes to survive. It is in the same model that the universe was formed, quasars and pulsars and everything in-between. There is no better explanation or physical example under this sun. Everything is influenced by this and synchronizes accordingly balances and finds its self under the path least restrictive to exist. When our sun stops, slows down or eventually loses the attraction around the discs of our binary core called the milky way. We will siege to exist any longer. The light will have gone out and there will no longer be a dynamic moving magnetic stream for us to exist within that light. All religions believe and agree on one thing. That is … let there be light.

While the poems are for your mental entertainment, they carry a message of concern as to how we treat our Earth and how we think with our brains rather than with our hearts and why, we act and behave as humans to chemical energy events in our daily lives, how that interaction causes trends and how the elements of attraction and repulsion differ when they are subject to unnatural man made compounds and electrical forces.

It is hoped, that we can view these now that science and our modern-day knowledge of the sciences along with the discoveries in the outer space of our bodies, are one in the same, as the inner works of our bodies themselves, view and behave to the outer bodies earth environment. It is all the same. Nothingness, having the potential of everything contained within it. Magnetically being influenced and guided. As we go around our Dynamo ying yang Disc, we call the Milky way. Our sun rotates on an outer band like an outer band of a hurricane wind force. As we get further away from our core, the weaker we will become. The Mayans realized this. King Solomon discovered it and the Egyptians proved it. Using the models of the ying and Yang, when incorporating the Chinese Tri-Grams of binary. Seeing the frequencies of colors emanating from the magnetic influences that make our chukka's center. These are dynamically rotating in line and sync with our galaxy, phasing north, then south. Can we see everywhere in the heaven several types of magnetic CREATIONS.

Galaxies that are disc type. Radial Type, and gaseous type. That are still fundamentally proving my understanding of how a magnetic wave/particle phasing creates everything from the nothingness void, we call space or dark matter and that in the void, once a nudge occurs in any direction instantly out of nothing magnetic field begins to expand and make energy.

This something, has no weight except the weight upon its attraction. The frequency of creates phasing, determines what mass is attracted and how much space between the elements will determine that weight. As nothingness begins to accelerate towards the magnetic charges and based on those spaces between the elements will determine the amount of energy it is capable of generating. Some will become stored energy, some will be fuel energy and the sum of the mass will be the potential energy. That is why based on the location within nothingness that the moment of a nudge, Creation occurs it occupies space and expands. This will define, the shape of the Galaxy science defines, one of four different shapes, spiral, elliptical, lenticular, and irregular. This supports how creation out of nothingness the magnetic influence is the building block and within a magnetic line field or force we call that stream, in my example, the cross section will reveal two poles one white pole and one black pole. Rotating within that field line as the dynamo disc of the ying and yang. Rotation begins when these poles start to rotate under the influences of magnetic attraction and repulsion of north and south fields interlaced with radio ways emanating from the center of Trinity.

It is also in the outer space and beyond, while on the inner space of all living things. The two poles rotating causes the chemicals of C,T, and A,G in binary concert with the rotation of attraction/repulsion to gather molecules of Oxygen and Nitrogen if present. When that occurs, it begins the same cycle of taking from nothing for fuel to make bone, teeth, hair, skin, into whatever based on that frequency speeds, life as we know it. Again, it must have an inner part like earth to establish the magnetic poles to keep the Dynamo of Magnetic rotating in a repeatable frequency. Or, it dies off as soon as it began. Create Action in nothingness and everything becomes possible. Thus, Creation.

This is been my 20-year discovery and research. While science has its definite explanations and has tested many and some succeed more failed, because they weren't looking as space/ dark matter if you will, was not definitive but infinitive and sacred geometry within a rotating ying yang magnetic nudge, creates from nothing, everything. My final challenge, I stated earlier in my book. Show me something that exists in the outer world on earth, both living or stationary, that doesn't already live in perfection with our bodies, all other species, and nature. Now take it further. Show me one thing in nothingness of space that doesn't exist with sound explanation and unified basis everywhere you look. Here is my manifest for creation.

This is what we are, this is what we are made of and from. Now consider the importance of good water and hydration, consider the interference of all molecules being moved out of natural order and caused to be forced by man into creation to be used for selfish convivences. The cause and effect, I remind you of dropping a rock in water to only getting one ring. When we keep making electricity and changing creation and our existence and balance from Heart to Earth, Earth to heart.

In the beginning there was heaven and earth, and the earth was without form or void. And darkness was upon the face of the deep and god moved upon the face of the waters and god declared. “let there be Light” and there was Light. In commemoration of that August event, I say let there be light! Light, has no time. Until it meets with a sound wave can time then be measured.

In conclusion: Light passes through water causing a vibratory influence for chemical elements to attract as the magnetic field that stimulates this constancy will life form around the rotating two poles of the Ying and yang. Thus, life as we know it, Began. Without water, without light, without a rotating magnetic field, Life is not possible. As long as we remain within nothing ness, Space, Dark Matter, whatever you want to call it, it never had to be created, we never needed a big bang event. If we remain within, and conditions right, that water remains balanced, and light passes through it, will matter appear organizing building blocks to living forms of life.

So, life is out there in different forms based on the frequencies of light water and the field strength of the magnetic dynamo poles. The resources of elements it can and will attract. CREATE ACTION Thus Creation...The Beginning, …. The End……

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

Pulsating N to S

As soon as the North and south pass one another their influences cause energy to be born and rotation begins.

When we look at this concept and realize that the frequency of light must pass through the water and in doing so, energy and vibratory stimulus is retained in water. When water comes in contact with other elements, chemicals, minerals etc., it begins the influence to those elements. The random order is passed onto whatever water encounters.

But, without the magnetic field lines stirring the brew, providing vibratory stimulus in the manner that field lines produce, can life begin and sustain itself.

The three magnetic field lines rotating Light and water, when looking at the magnetic lines, it will require a mass that is magnetically charged and drawing all matter towards it. Whereby, the magnetic field of attraction and repulsion that is balanced by the lights frequency such that, the resources of other matter accumulated, is such that, the atmosphere and its mass develops an atmosphere and be the proper content and balance to work as a filter to sustain the water from evaporation, before life can begin.

Evidence I offer you of creation is now complete. I have shown you that the three building blocks and the mass and balance of its mass subjected to the light and having an environment to sustain water/ice. In addition, I have shown you that the means of creation, and the means-by-which it can create heaven and earth and all living species is existing in perfection within the body of all living things. The way, as I stated earlier in the book that, there is nothing in the cosmos or within our body as s a species that doesn't exist in perfection in our body and that we mimic that perfection and bring it into the outer world. So, in jest, find me something in the outer world you can experience that doesn't already exist in perfection within us. Simply put, there is NOTHING!

Providing examples throughout the book and leaving you with the final chapter to think about, as I explain now, how from a single cell organism to the complexity of all species. We mimic the means to communicate with each other in a variety of frequency, senses and means.

Our subconscious is the beginning was training and adapting its design by teaching the species how to extract the mathematical means from the signal that gives us life. Being the frequency coming from our great luminary, and beyond. Which, without water to retain its signal we would never have been able to create life. Since that point therein, our subconscious in charge of all our functions manages everything by mathematical process of the suns frequency, the Milky Way's signals that are cross hatching and producing energy for us as well. But, by this process it taught us by using the water we are, how to communicate. While, over the course of history and evolution, we have modified the means to improve the sound we make from the light signal of thought. It is through water all stimulus and the memory of its signal is generated and stimulated converting light and magnetic lines of force into physical energy and thought. So, it has been in the discovering as far back as King Solomon, carried through the Egyptian culture. Mayans, Aztec's the discovery was in living stones that they build using sacred geometry and the study of the cosmos and had a better understanding of the creator. But, our species, deviated from other species.

It was King Solomon, who, took from all different human kind. Klan's and tribes with no language and through symbols, were they able to take ideology (internal thought) and make it understandable, repeatable to others and brought these people to best work and agree that led to structures our engineers today could not replicate. Their legacy carved in living stones. Lined up magnetically, and in flux to the bodies in the cosmos so that energy coming from afar could be channeled and human conscience developed.

It has been in front of us since the beginning. And just recently the discovery of the Dispillo Tablet some 7,500 years before any other record of writing symbols to exchange the energy of thought, To the Phoenician, Greeks, Romans, and other ancient civilizations, that the Freemasons today, still inscribe in the fraternity the transformation of virtuous thoughts and deeds. Thru the practice of the rituals passed on from these teachings, whereby make good men better. Understanding their creator better and align themselves among each other that we can now show how the same building tools that built the great edifices left for us to discover the hidden secrets. Those built structures, are one in the same as how the subconscious processes a language of mathematics and geometry to communicate to the conscience and to others.

The Freemasons discovered the Square, the Level and the Plumb. As working tools to build the great edifices that have existed beyond any civilizations life, thus far. The same tools are taught in ritualist forms that mimic the rituals of passage from Entered Apprentice, an individual in the quarry taking ruff stones and fitting them to perfection to be placed like building blocks. Magnetically aligned, to the Fellow Craft and to the Master Mason. This practice mimic's the discoveries King Solomon learned and passed on in the great temple. The floor of all lodges globally has that mathematic trestle board where the scale of designs can be measured and duplicated. But, the real discovery is the subconscious uses these tools to communicate a language and cause us to create the symbols for language that defines to anyone the frequency and meaning of the conversion of energy and thought that can be passed specifically contained thought to another called language and speech.

In all ancient languages, symbols came first then language and speech. But, all have the means that creation uses and depends on the magnetic field and force to organize the luminary signal and retain its information in the water.

The Square… The Level The Plumb The Circle The Triangle

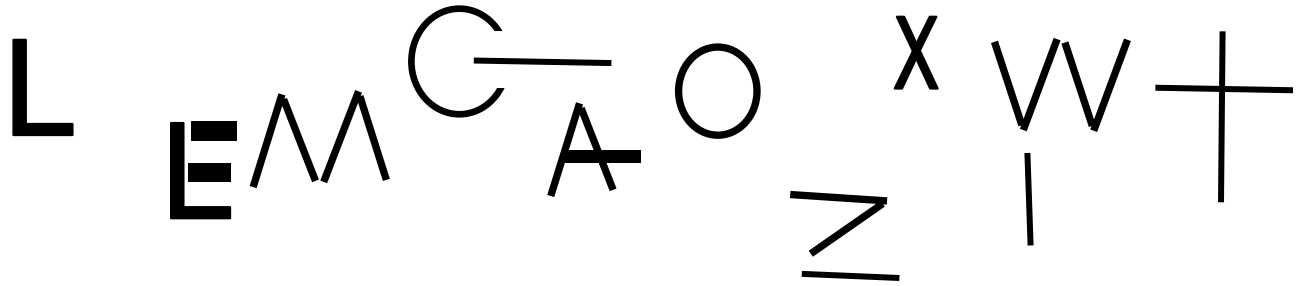

These symbols when looked upon by the conscience mind stimulates the activity in the brain. Converting images to thought energy and are throughout the ages from the beginning of human beings the means by which the subconscious attempts to communicate to the outer world and to other living bodies. It is the conversion of the mathematical images through the water that triggers the mind to calculate and arrange a matrix of thoughts into common energy conversions and stimulus to muscles, bones, and other working features of all living beings.

Early man would of looked at its outer environment and first seen the horizon, (-) then the mountains, (Λ)then the human would of noticed the trees grow straight up to the heaven

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

Despite being on side of a mountain. (I) He would have seen the sun above and later the moon would be above the horizon at dark and the sun again at light. The sub-conscience then creates a standard reference for human thought conscience. Whereby, the human would naturally deduce that the heavens and the horizon were divided from heaven and earth and to realize a constant memory reference. Later, the Division symbol (÷) would be drawn to tell others of this thought. And symbols would then be born. Rationalization would bring if there was no sun, no moon, then the horizon would be without and the Minus sign (-) would be created. Taking then the same pathological process by the subconscious to conscience thoughts. The human would have deduced further. That the trees are square to the heaven and earth, and the horizon was level with water. Thus, the two come together the plum line to the horizontal would become addition sign. (- I +) Followed by rotating the plus sign 45 degrees would mean multiplying. (X) As the early human would have experienced they increase in speed sliding down the mountain side. As energy does when rotated 45 degrees from level. Early human would begin to share with others of the kind. The (=) sign would been used to state the same as above or below. Mathletics and the ability to explain whats trapped inside one towards the other would then be born. Meaning taking the Square, which is the horizontal line and the plum line of the trees in nature, the alphabet was born. The letter E, and the alphabet was used with the primary symbols early human looked at its outer world and was taught by the inner human how to think.

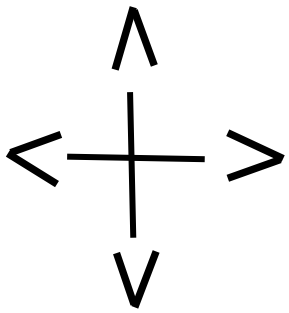

This was the beginning of language. Speech came later into vocabulary. All language (letter Symbols) would use no more than the three primary physical observances. As it evolved with reason the early human would learn that the symbols of nature stimulate one's inner self. By this expression and further deeper meaning will be discovered. To communicate and move about the land, nature teaching early man how to navigate. By taking the triangle (mountains) and the horizon (level Line) and placing it centered

The inner self could tell others of direction, locations.

This later would evolve to North, South, East and West. Then to, Up, Down, Left Right. Past, Present, Future. Early man was setting the stage to reason and memory for recall to others through the symbols. Whether it began in Phoenicians, Latin, Roman, Samaritan, Hebrew etc. But, as nature was teaching its infant of the outer world thru the inner world, the early human would begin to realize a inner experience to these familiar environmental shapes in nature and relate a chemistry within the Nero-transmitters of the brain that was building an algorithm, the same algorithm in the DNA of nature language that built all living structures (species). When looking at the symbol, based on which way the horizontal or vertical lines were arranged pointed and the number of symbols brought together, is where the mathematical symbols emerged, and addition began. But moreover, the direction of the symbol pointing told the nerotransmitters what frequency of light range it placed it would chemically induce a synapse and in the count of the synapse, chemically excited the nerotransmitters and create direction of north field, South Field, or East or West. Causing the Nero-transmitters to amplify (X) (-) (+) (÷) (=) and send a binary single communication to the voice box the combination that would water vibrate the voice box that made speech possible. Completing inner to outer experience.

So, it has been right in front of us all this time. The means of how the creator communicates and transfer energy from light to water and to the means of communication mathematically that converts into language by these symbols, the creator providing a map and understanding for thought itself.

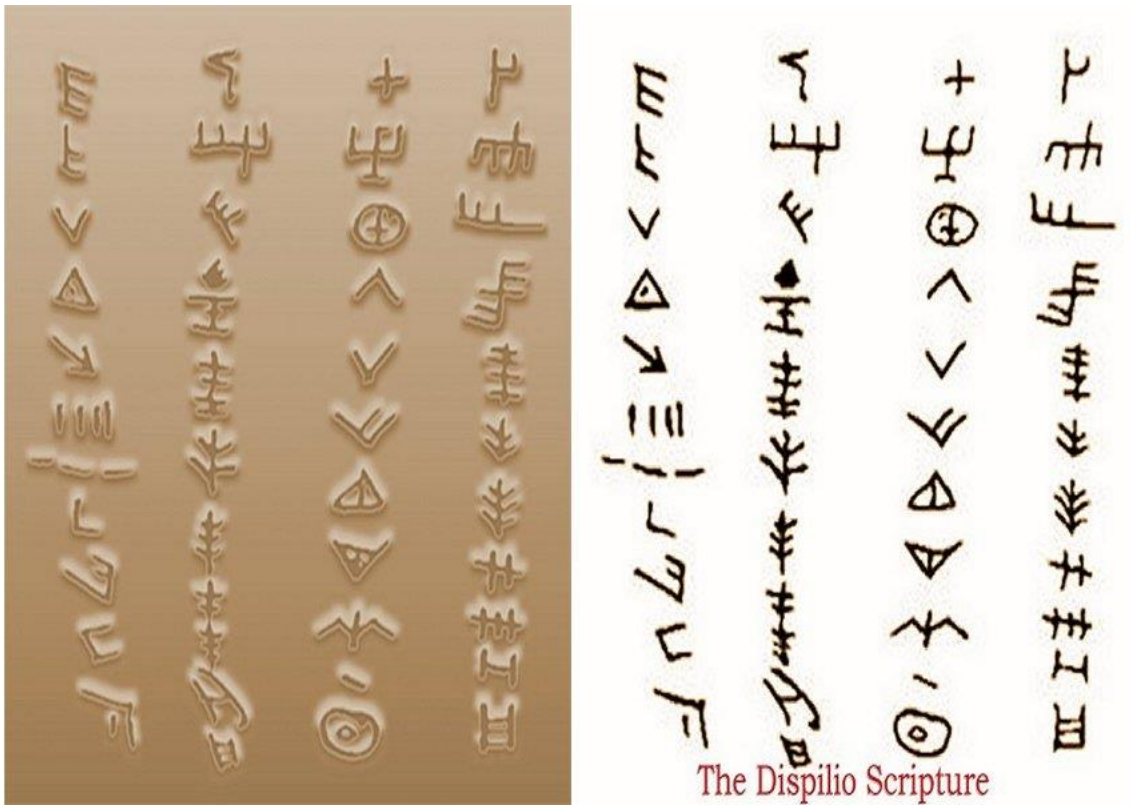

A. Sutherland - AncientPages.com - There was once a mysterious European culture, which left a legacy in form of valuable artifacts covered with an unknown, never successfully deciphered script. These artifacts have been excavated from sites in south-east Europe.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

On many of the artefacts excavated from sites in south-east Europe, there have been found the Vinca symbols. Here are common symbols used throughout the Vinca period:

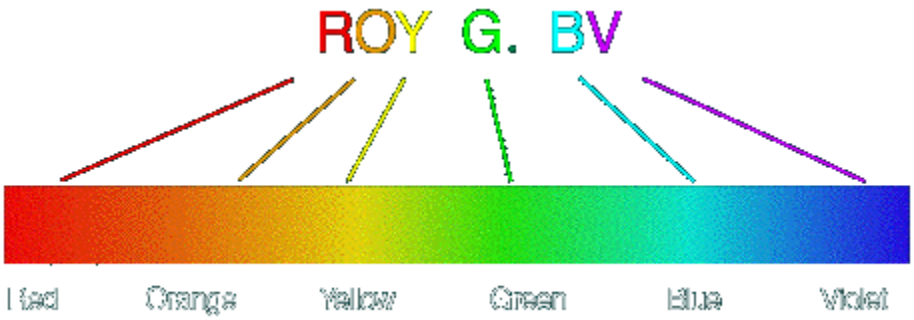

The artifact - inscribed with symbols similar to those of the Vinca Culture - has been carbon 14-dated to about 5260 BC, which means that it is 2,000 years older than proto-Sumerian pictographic script from Uruk (modern Iraq) and 4,000 years older than the Cretan-Mycenean linear types of writing.

As language became organized, the inner self, creator of all actions, stimulated these nerotransmitters to organize evolving a rule of combining these symbols to make a standard meaning or reference for memory retention. Thus, the Constantan letter then Vowel then another Constant (CVC) (VCCV) letter would create the frequency generator for the speech cord.

Whereby, man evolved and separated it self from other species. By the understanding of creating and action thus (CREATION) out of nothing a thought generates, and the energy is attracted of repelled and the generator commences expending energy throughout. Causing energy to be influenced by thought. And thought manifesting form. The Nero-transmitter holds the golden key in the Lion's mouth by the strong grip of the Lion's Paw since the time of Judah. Meaning, when the two nerotransmitters see a symbol based on the direction from N, S,E,W, it generates the algorithm such to transmit. But, it must mate with another nerotransmitter to transmit the stored algorithm to the opposite and when they hook up the synapse transmits across a air gap. The golden message, the hook up is the Lions Paw. The transmitter resembles the Lion's Mouth, and the Tribe of Judah is what ancients referred to when man began organized thought from within. Thus, without this occurrence, thought would not be possible, and man would not know of its own existence outside of the present. We now changed the arrangement of the magnetic fields and direction by spelling NEWS in other words the word comes from information from the North, East, West, and South. Meaning information from all corners of the earth.

If you look at all languages, they have and make up of these fundamental building tools through their use and symbol that thought, and speech are possible.

Recently discovered, the Dispillo Tablet believed by carbon 14 dating to be 7,500 years before any other evidence discovered thus far of man's ability to have a language or writings.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

If you look at this when mankind was in its infant stages from the creator, still tribes and clans before societies formed and trade began, This tablet was written. Demonstrating and supporting what I declare in that these same symbols was the means that was discovered in the Building Blocks of man's DNA that it could form and train the conscience how to think and communicate mathematically within, as well as, without. While, it was not meant for the conscience to process the many frequencies needed to expend energy or store it, when thought had to be expressed to their contemplation of thought had to become organized, did the sub-conscience desired to provide a means to convert language and speech into energy. As time went on, symbols, (things that were relative to physical surroundings could the brain evolve, and chemical changes of thought began organizing, that could be translated from symbols to useable thought and the energy to create itself was the civilized man evolved. These fundamental symbols are in every language and is the key to communicating and storing and expending energy. Review these symbols and I will now show you how it communicates in the fundamental mathematical frequency that built itself.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

Going towards the present from ancient man and civilization you will see this fundamental system of visual stimulation generating energy to muscles through water that speech was converted mathematically from the subconscious of man to the conscience man.

Here this shows that in three influential cultures seemly created their languages and speech without influence from other humans. Showing that it is created by the creator within and shared to the conscience by visual stimulation to muscle stimulation generating associated speech that the subconscious shared and evoke the training of the human to have thought and speech as another tool to create. We were created in the likeness of our creator. And in every religion, like I said earlier. “Let there be Light” The three comparisons were discovered that Greek, Roman and Russian use 11 symbols (letters) in their languages and are in common. Called by its discoverer John Venn in 1880. You can see their languages symbols are from the fundamental use of a square, a level and a plumb, circle and triangle. Funny how John Venn selected three circles to depict his complex thought.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

Looking at the converging circles John Venn discovered that 11 of the letters (symbols) were used by different cultures and created a language. This was not done by sharing and agreeing, it was done from within. Influenced by the light and relayed in the water as we are stimulated by the magnetic fields.

Comparing the Dispilio Tablet, some 7500 years ago, and then looking at the Venn diagram of language, then jumping ahead to modern letters and symbols. I can now show the evolutionary perfection the inner world of our bodies helping us to perfect a system for the inner world as well as the outer world. By now, you are asking, how does these symbols convert to mathematical frequencies the brain or body subconscious can equate and generate thought, muscle actions and perfection in all we do?

If you can look at the fundamental symbols above the square, the level, the plumb, triangle and circle, you will see this practice was done in every culture everywhere over time. Each symbol you will find, the combination of the fundamental symbols intertwined. They signal a road map of forming energy the subconscious declared, when it invoked the muscles and eyes to create the image of the symbols (letters) that was to become thought communicated. Once formatted, became the instant recall of muscle energy to recreate in all various orders called mathematical. One's and zero's that in modern time we discover another way to convert letters to numbers to send as a signal down a wire. Ironically, (all telecommunications today require a man-made magnet in order to get a result, a.k.a. speaker) when Alexander Graham Bell did this using electricity and magnetic means of an apparatus called the telegraph. Where he invented, thanks be to the subconscious who taught the conscience how to do so using natures elements. His first transmission message down a wire was; "look what God Wrought" Now, ask yourself. Did Bell's subconscious generate the thought to use that letters to transmit or did Bell's conscience inspire him to do so?

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

Here's how the rules designed, articulate and mathematical energy triggers the subconscious to conscience, inner to outer world communication. This is true in every language I have tested. Words are written mathematical codes of extreme frequencies and equations that the subconscious used to command the body. The functions of reason, application, muscle memory, and mental memory,

So how does the subconscious communicate with the conscience?

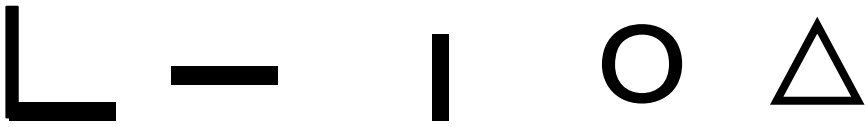

The same way a computer displays and calculates visual representations and sounds. We only mimic the great signal from Trinity. You see we mimic everything that lives in perfection within our species. We invented NOTHING!

1's and zeroes are the creator's language. The signal transmitting energy at 432 times a second.

Using visual assets to display recognizable symbols that have a long algorithm behind the scenes the same way a computer does. Lots of code with just the typing to make one image on a screen took to generate the 1"s and 0's.

Here's how it was done.

The Square… The Level The Plumb The Circle The Triangle

Each symbol counts as one action. Create Action by combining one with another. And then counting the number to make a letter. When this is done by the subconscious, and visually seen by the conscience. The algorithm the subconscious calls the assignment and it invokes muscles, nerves, Nero-transmitters and chemical actions that expend and consume energy.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

For Example,

The letter “A” takes the open triangle and adds the level to make the symbol “A” that requires two strokes or two of the symbols coming together. Thus, = 2

Take the letter “E” it has one square symbol added with two levels that requires 3 strokes of symbols combined to make the letter E, thus =3

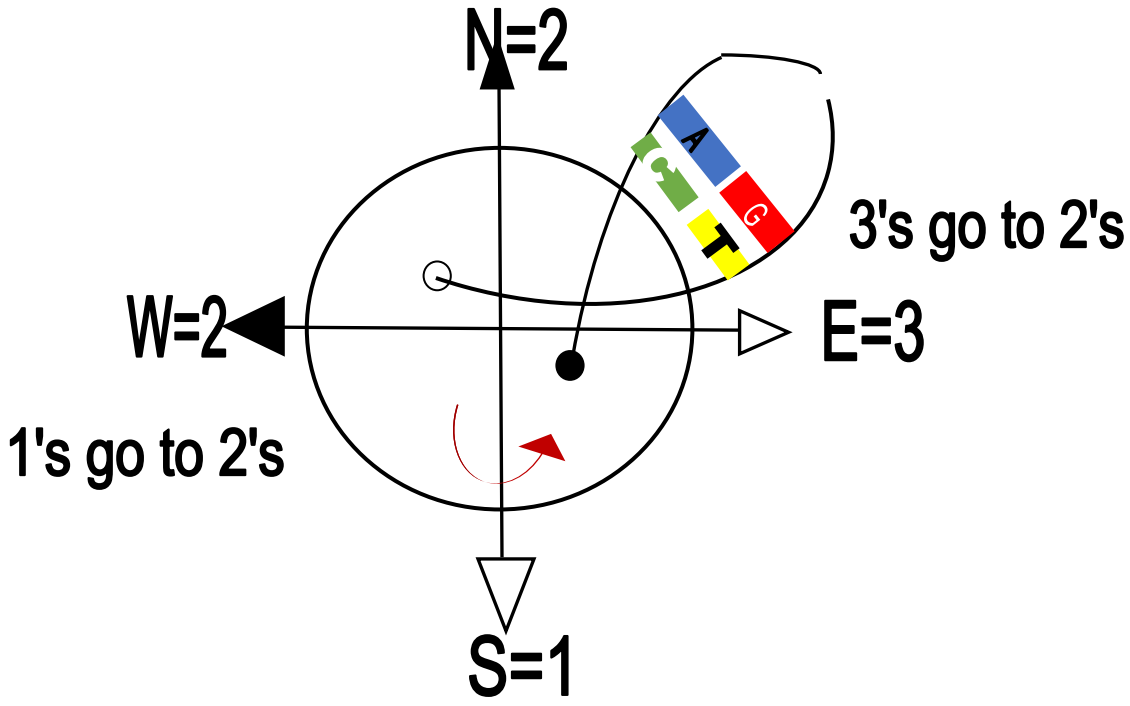

And so on, here is the English alphabet which I will use to create the code for the next communication between the subconscious and conscience.

While I am showing you numbers to make the signal I ask you to convert in your mind the series of north, South then East to west in exact order. This order is how the body uses the stimulation to communicate thought by field and chemical stimulations traveling in the exact order observed.

Okay, now that we have a visual recognition how do we get to the sound generator for speech?

Here's How…
Take my name for example: JEFF STARKE, using the total number combined that make up the symbol. Graph it using the plumb and level lines.

Graph it!

So this is what my name looks like when the frequency is sent to the vocal cords to transmit the symbols designed by the sub-conscience the symbols convert to numbers, numbers go through an algorithm the algorithm then uses the light frequency (Colors of energy in your Chukars) with the use of energy in the form of Magnetic fields to attenuate the field strength and generate the signal for the vocal chords to resonate. All getting its behavior orders from within the water contained in our bodies. Now, managed by our centers of the brain which communicate from the process of stored energy in the water. Remember, our brains are surrounded in water and our bodies charka energy field. As we raise our conscience values, our frequencies begin to vibrate, and our light is viewed by subconscious, where the true information of our combined cells (spirit) is read in the light we are. The higher the nobility and virtues we emulate the greater the light Is seen, the healthier we become. The energy leaves our bodies North influenced giving us a sense of ascension into the light we emulate. The lower energies massed from the south the lower deeds and acts bring down the energy and once the chukars drop below the heart level we become unhealthy. Our light diminishes matter weakened and less to use towards change.

So how does speech generate?

Spoken language effortless as it may seem, requires a complex orchestration of the muscles in the human parts of the body such as the tongue, lips, Jaw muscles, and ultimately the voice box. The Brains activities and patterns that control these are carefully organized by energy value into an organized thought.

The Large vast variety of sounds capable of being produced use only a very small set of movements from the signals being generated. In a recent study published in “Nature”, the scientists recorded the activity of neurons in a part of the brain called the sensorimotor cortex, which coordinates muscle movements, while people pronounced various syllables. Researchers measured brain activity using electrodes placed on the surface of the brain as part of a clinical treatment for epilepsy.

The results showed that the activity patterns of large populations of cells corresponded in space and time to certain phonetic features.

In essence, the scientists have charted a map of the brain's somatosensory cortex for specific facial and oral body parts, computational neuroscientist Nicho Hatsopoulos of the University of Chicago, who was not involved in the study, told LiveScience. Furthermore, the timing of activity in different brain areas is important, Hatsopoulos said. "You see activity in one part that might represent the lips or tongue, and then later in time, another area gets activated."

The resulting brain activity is like a carefully tuned orchestra; each instrument section generates a specific sound, and those sounds are coordinated to produce the overall symphony.

The researchers' map of different vocal regions in the brain mirrored the layout of the vocal tract. They found an additional region, representing the voice box (the larynx), which is not present in non-human primates. The area could be a unique human specialization for speech, the researchers say.

Previous studies have shown that merely stimulating one spot in the brain cannot produce speech sounds. Rather, speech requires the concerted activity of many different neurons, as the new study confirms. By Tanya Lewis, Staff Writer | February 20, 2013.

It is this observation that I make my point. In that, it takes the North, South, East and West field generations ongoing in the human body to generate. And each are a different frequency of light and they represent a color. As the vibration of light energy speed determines the light. But, the reason it appears to science in different times or locations is because of many factors but ultimately no action of speech or thought occur without the Magnetic Field generating. This process of generating by filed location is done by stimulations of a symbol, letter, color, sound, etc., and then directing it through the water in front of the lens to the water in the brain and the vocal cords. All receive the information and signal that makes speech possible. A given plan and code by the subconsciousness mind to the conscience mind that took ideology into organized thought then to repetitive uses developed the standard through awareness of the symbols, letters etc., became speech. But, the rule was written by the frequencies patterned and stored in the DNA and passed on genetically, generation after generation.

Just like offspring, while I was unable to prove to myself, much less others, I believe that there is the speed of thought that is much faster than the speed of light. As I was unable to establish its origin. Kind of like the chicken or the egg scenario.

The greater risk that the parts the body will go to Dis-Ease and then signal the DNA's dormant seed, to begin decomposition as though our light went out, like in the case of death. Although we are still alive. We call that cancer. CANCER = 1

Here's how the algorithm may look like for the same two words breaks it down to the lowest value then transmits the entire message in light frequency. This is the method for all languages and how the DNA built the double helix by bringing North, East, West, South field generators into a algorithm to transmit a frequency of light that it received from the eyes through the water lens it interpreted the symbols it got the conscience to create.

Rendering an agreed pattern for the body to transmit for speech, the Closed Triangle with a Level or Plumb symbol express, when combined together, Direction for North, West and South. Thus, when you take the words NEWS it is the word News and that is information gathered from the North, East, West and South. In that order, causes the magnetic field to rotate. East to West. That's the sandwich that causes rotation North and South fields leaving the North going into the south poles, then, causing the East to rotate towards the West. As stated earlier. As the earth follows the same creation, so does within our bodies convert magnetic energy to physical energy. Let's look at the word "Creation" using the Algorithm from the same symbols that were created through time, by several cultures, that were in separate regions at the time. Somewhere globally in one of the four directions.

Everything is Binary. Why not another number system? Well, it is because there is 4 magnetic fields of attraction and repulsion. Thus, opposites attract. Like fields repel, Or North attract to south East repels West thus rotation. At the what I call the shear point (when one passes the other, here, is where light is created or energy if you will.) These four field directions are the fundamental building blocks and why every energy signal generated. Anywhere on this planet or throughout the cosmos is binary. 1,2,3,4, or 1's and zeros it is this paring of attraction and repulsion that pairs them. N to S, one set, E to W, the other set. It is the rotation that causes and converts energy. But, it also created all living organisms. Let's take the DNA for another example,

There are four chemicals that bond together Cytosine and Guanine, Adenine and Thymine, known affectionately as, C,G,-A,T. They are paired by the same C, attracted to G, as A attracted to T, C repels to A, and G repels to T. this rotation of magnetic field lines of the two magnetic field lines rotate ng inside the single magnetic field line is what causes the C,T,A,G binary code of life. Computers use 1"s and 0"s for everything. We got that from within. Within our bodies is the cosmos, as it is, without of our bodies into the outer world. Imagine, light, then sound creating action. Like dropping a rock in water, the event line begins and from that moment on, Nothingness is disturbed. Causing magnetic pulses turning into rotating waves. Energy is born and the magnetic field comes into existence occupying space. An event lines that brings like the ring when a rock drops into water, all energy will follow, or repel. But, within that nothingness, which didn't need to be created, exists everything possible. All the elements, now from that moment of creation, begins organizing and by rotating and pulsating, north direction to south and rotating east to west. Which, makes the shapes of everything as far as we know it and can observe it. As elements are drawn together, they take on mass only to themselves, due to the nothingness of everything that is now been put into motion. Create Action. = Creation.

We will like all elements before us, will be born and die and return to nothing to be reused. This is Creation the Beginning the END.

Ironically, this is not a new discovery. But the Freemason's teach it in everything and in every degree ritual and has been passing it along generation to generation since before King Solomon's Temple was completed. The Square, the Level and The Plumb along with the four parts of a circle and the triangle, have been images and tenants of Freemasonry, that, has proven and now, the secret word has been discovered for the future generations today. The secret is the creator… It is You! What the builder? You're in charge, with free-will to take what the creator sends as a signal and build, maintain and create your own energy.

Now, that I got your mind to understand by symbols representing numbers to generate the signal, as we do, to make computers work, I want you now to take the next leap. By placing the numbers in the series from the symbols used and place them into the four parts of the circle in the above chart and there is when you will see how the field signals not only coming from "TRINITY" with influences from our nearby sun. By placing these numbers, you will see how the human generates energy to transmit the signal to the vocal cords. All languages spell words and the words we spell properly was created from within to represent this or that. But, the Freemasons, discovered it commands by the level, the plumb, the circle, representing the ying and yang divided by the four parts of a circle divisional by the use of a square. Then the symbols we look upon and put into sequence to transmit by the energy it responded to. Thought is now organized and repeatable to between subconscious to conscience then to other consciences. But, the light generated from the experiences, is reinterpreted by the two sub consciences which observed the light being expended by each other.

The chemicals that run the brain are used by the neurotransmitters. They carry information from one neuron to another.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

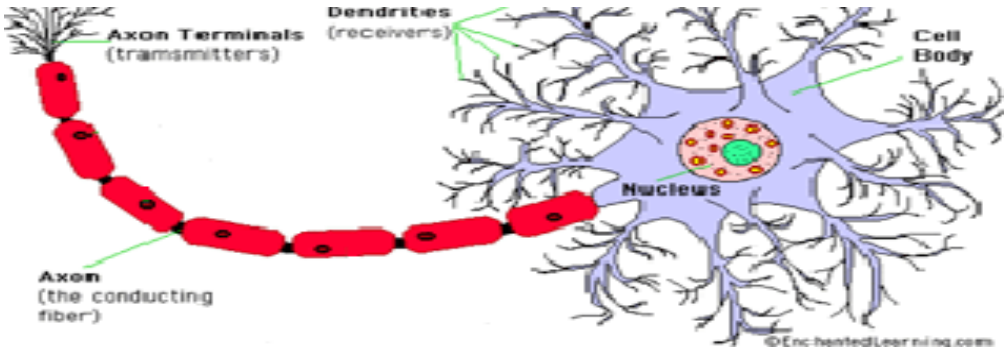

NEUROTRANSMITTER

What is a Neurotransmitter?

The chemicals that run the brain are called neurotransmitters. They carry information from one neuron to another.

Where are Neurotransmitters located in the brain?

Neurotransmitters are chemicals that live inside brain cells (neurons). They are stored in sacks just by the synapse at the end of the neuron's axon.

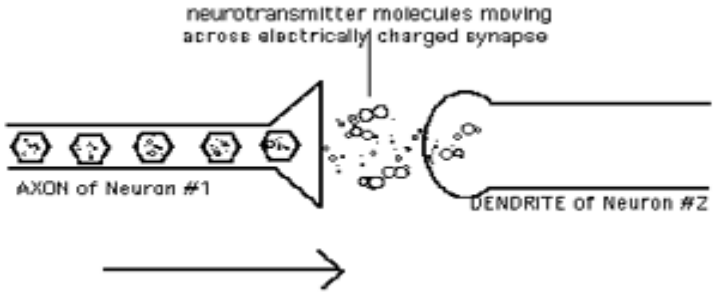

How do Neurotransmitters move across the synapse?

Magnetic field stimulations from the cell body free chemicals and propel them across the synapse. Special receptors at the end of dendrites form to accept certain neurotransmitters like lock and key.

Here is a diagram of neurotransmitter molecule moving across the synapse.

Golden key is in the lions mouth by the strong grip of the lion's paw from the time of Judah.

Just as chicken soup makes your body feel better, chemicals produced in your brain make it feel better. These chemicals (over 60 different kinds) affect memory, learning and relationships. The thoughts we have, the food we eat, and the drugs we take all have an effect on the chemicals in our brains.  note science declares it is electrical charges, but it is because they use electrical equipment to tap only the inductance of the inside field of one magnetic line they call that electricity and give it direction by using the level symbol - (minus) and + a level and a plumb (positive) to represent Field changes. Silly as this is it works to communicate the same thing.

For the generation of energy or for simple means to express except for now the positive and negative just realize it is magnetic directors for the signal in North south, east of west moving energy fields in the body that is receiving magnetic fields coming from influential energy fields in earth, our sun. and celestials' bodies which are all being balanced by the transmissions coming from Sagittarius "A" Star in the center of the Milky way. Intertwined with An "East" star and "West" Star one generating west and the other east while orbiting around the Sagittarius "A" Star which is a Radio frequency transmitting star, While the east and west star are magnetic poled stars. This combination of an radio frequency and a north and south magnetic waves. Is what keeps the galaxy intact and the unique sizes of contained energy and the spaces between them causes a unique balance that life was able to be formed.

And realize also, that because of this, our pulsating North magnetic fields going to south influence gets rotation because of Star "A" East and Star "B" West orbiting and influencing Creation.

Adult humans have 100 billion neurons, each capable of making thousands of connections, the chemicals transmitted across synapses of neurons form larger neural networks (bundles) that are distributed to various areas of the brain depending upon which chemical bundles they are. Different neurotransmitters affect brain activity in different ways. It is these same bundles I believe is how speech is possible.

Below, nerotransmitter, While the chart shows and explains electrical signals remember above. I leave it to show an example on how science got lost when trying to explain a source they know not where it came from. And developed the love affair for electrical energy which by the way, as stated earlier in our book, that when you follow the electrical signals you will discover at the end of the line there is a spinning magnet. All electricity are sensing the inductance of the north and south field in one magnetic line .

And control the oxy-gen and carbon for us cells that are in the outer body, as the same, that, they do in our bodies in our lungs and brains.

Nature repeats itself in everything from Nothing. Here a picture showing the same factoring we talked about earlier demonstrated a tree is a neurotransmitter for the outer brain.

CREATION – By Jeffrey W. Starke Copywrite all rights reserved 1997

A neurotransmitter is a chemical substance that is released by a transmitting neuron (a cell that conducts changing magnetic pulsator signals; the base unit of the Nervous system, (also called a nerve cell) at the synapse, and that which, alters the activity of a receiving neuron. Neurotransmitters makes it possible for one neuron to excite or inhibit another. They are chemical messengers located in the brain, spinal cord, peripheral nerves and certain glands. Through their effects on specific nervous circuits, they can affect moods, memory, and wellbeing. There are hundreds of substances known to being transmitters in our bodies and the number keeps growing. When a cell is stimulated, a change in electrical potential occurs between the inside and the outside of a cell. The result is a brief change in electrical voltage that produces electrical impulses. Changes then occur in the receiving neurons membrane and the effect is either excitatory (a shift in north direction) or a inhibitory (a shift in the south direction) The messages that reaches the final direction depends on the rate in which the individual neutrons are firing.

Production of neurotransmitters in our bodies, depends on the nutrients we get. If we are not getting nutrients in the right quantity, deficiency occurs, and over time disease and illness associated with a low level of neurotransmitter occurs. Abnormal levels of neurotransmitter are implicated in some common illnesses and diseases, including, but not limited to ADHD, Anorexia, Bulimia, Depression, High blood pressure, High cholesterol, Diabetics and Parkinson.

In addition, to mood control, it has been linked to sleep disorders, schizophrenia, blood pressure and hormonal activity. Outside of the brain, it also affects the gastrointestinal and cardiovascular systems. It is said, that too little of this serotonin can lead to anger control and suicide issues. The drug Prozac and a glass of warm milk before bed increases the levels of serotonin.

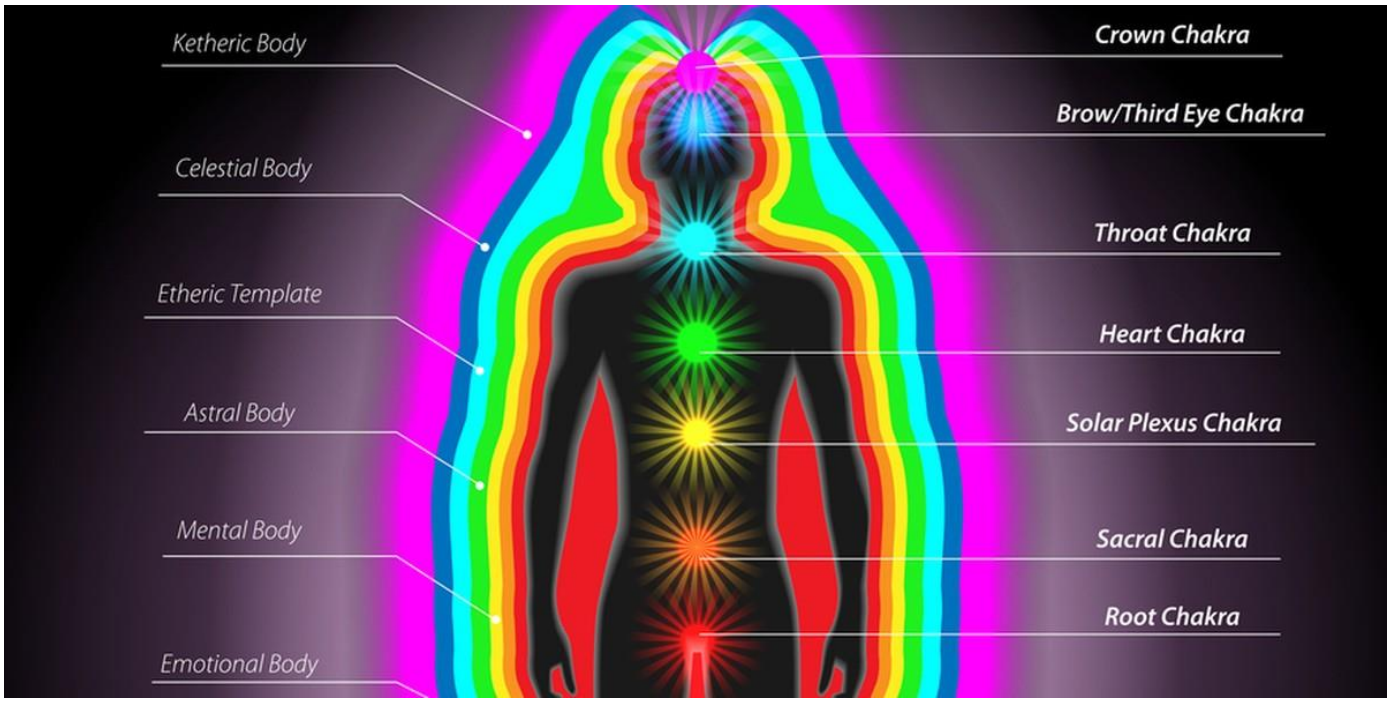

We know that Biology is the science of living things or the study of life. How we act and behave, comes directly from our physiological make up. Because of the many sequences of unfolding genetically behaviors from before birth through our senior years, Biology and behavior is then a "cause and effect" relationship. Genes with its many challenges and failings are passed on through our lineage which affects individuals at different times in their lives . After mapping and identifying the DNA pool.

In our daily lives we have hundreds of stimuli that affect our biological, behavior clock using all of our senses (sight, hearing, feeling, taste and smell). All in one way or another impacts our behavior, but only when we have a discriminative stimulus(touching something hot) is only when we acknowledge and respond, implementing a behavior change.

Circadian rhythm

A circadian rhythm is any biological process that displays an endogenous, untrainable oscillation of about 24 hours.

Red makes the heart beat faster. You will frequently find this and other claims made for the effects of different colors on the human mind and body

In 2009 blue lights were installed at the end of platforms on Tokyo's Yamanote railway line to reduce the incidence of suicide. As a result of the success of these lights (suicides fell by 74% at stations where the blue lights were installed)

Similarly, there is published data that show that exposure to bright, short-wavelength light a couple of hours prior to normal bedtime can increase alertness and subsequently affect sleep quality. Poor quality sleep is becoming increasingly prevalent in modern society and is linked with increased risk factors for obesity, diabetes and heart disease. There is some concern that the excessive use of smartphones and tablets in the late evening can affect sleep quality, because they emit substantial amounts of blue/green light at the wavelengths that inhibit the release of melatonin, and so prevent us from becoming drowsy.

Dr. Dietrich Klinghardt discusses this field in The Five Levels of Healing, which is based on a healing model developed some 12,000 years ago. This energetic model for health has influenced Tibetan medicine, traditional Chinese medicine (TCM), and Ayurvedic medicine as well.

The existence of the biophoton field was scientifically proven by Dr. Fritz-Albert Popp in 1974.

TRINITY

The Christian Godhead as one God in three persons: Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

a group of three people or things.

The center of the Galaxy "The Milky Way has three Stars. They are enormous Suns (sons) the state of being three. Generating light and Magnetic fields. They are locked together as one.

The center Star called Sagittarius A is a Radio producing Star where the other two stars orbiting around them having oblong rotation paths about Sagittarius A. These three-as-one, are the key elements holding and attracting all that comes within its attractions that now make up the Milky Way. We are on an outer band of this enormous system. That comprises our GOD head or TRINITY. The one generates the Radio Magnetic fields. While the other two rotate and are referenced East and West in an oblong rotational path. This system is responsible for everything within its clutches and the information within the light signals, follow the Ying and Yang rotation outward passing through everything. Creating life on our planet and forming the laws of attraction and rotation. It is this Trinity, that, the ancients knew of their origins. While just recently, with the use of Hubble Telescope and our alleged intelligence we have recently discovered and renamed these three giants that create heaven and earth. They pulse, and the north and south fields cause the east to west rotation of our Earth. But more over the energy system that drives our Human entities. That still require creating an action thus, Creation.

Move any of these Nothingness as I refer to it, and within nothingness, is all the elements will obey and follow and will create. Since, the main Star transmits and draws in all and transmits light and radio waves, while the other two orbit in an oblong rotational path about the Star. These two represent the North and South pulsating fields that are in magnetic alignment to the center of the Galaxy where trinity resides. And applies its loving arms of protection around everything it reaches.

In summary, here is where the creator resides. And we mimic the influences and our thoughts receive the signals from our closer star or immediate parent, our Sun. If it wasn't for these three Stars coming together, taking up space within nothingness, would our Planet ever have life to begin with. We are connected and synchronize to this and all that is in the Galaxy.

When we follow our sun around the Milky way. So, as we make one rotation around the Milky way influenced by our closer Star the sun. We pass through the four regions of radio waves we refer to as North, South, East, and West. It is these radio waves influence energy and change in man the thought processes. If it wasn't for the sun to capture and balance us and or moon to our magnetic attraction. The immediate heat we experience is the particles passing through the spaces of all elements, while the suns energy, is attracted to our core.

That the friction of these particles passing by the cells, atoms molecules etc., tugging and exchanging energy would the temperature be right for life to exist. The Mayans calendar is broken into the four parts of a circle representing a 25,000-year progression of sections of generated radio waves that earth with our solar system pass through and the space is 520 years wide before we pass thru another of its frequency… Their reference, the location we are by Zodiac signs of Twelve. And each of the four parts of this calendar, we are now entering into the Golden Age where the ancients knew man's thoughts and ideas and manifestations of energy that these fields generate. Brings us again, into the Golden Age of Discovery . it was that time we completed the rotation in December 12, 2012. We reach certain areas Freemasons refer to the four parts of a circle using the Square to equally divide a circle.

Representing the point in the center that we use the compass to inscribe the radius from. They represent it. With two parallel lines touching the outer circle, these lines are North and South here is where the human body generates and uses the energy to have thought and speech. The symbols of our languages comprising of a Square, a level a plum and a circle and triangle is how freemasons teach the virtues of the generation of energy to raise the light of man to the charka above the heart where we illuminate a greater aura and health. The Cross so symbolically used by religion is a level and a plumb line and the level is above the center symbolic of the ascensions of our lights energy.

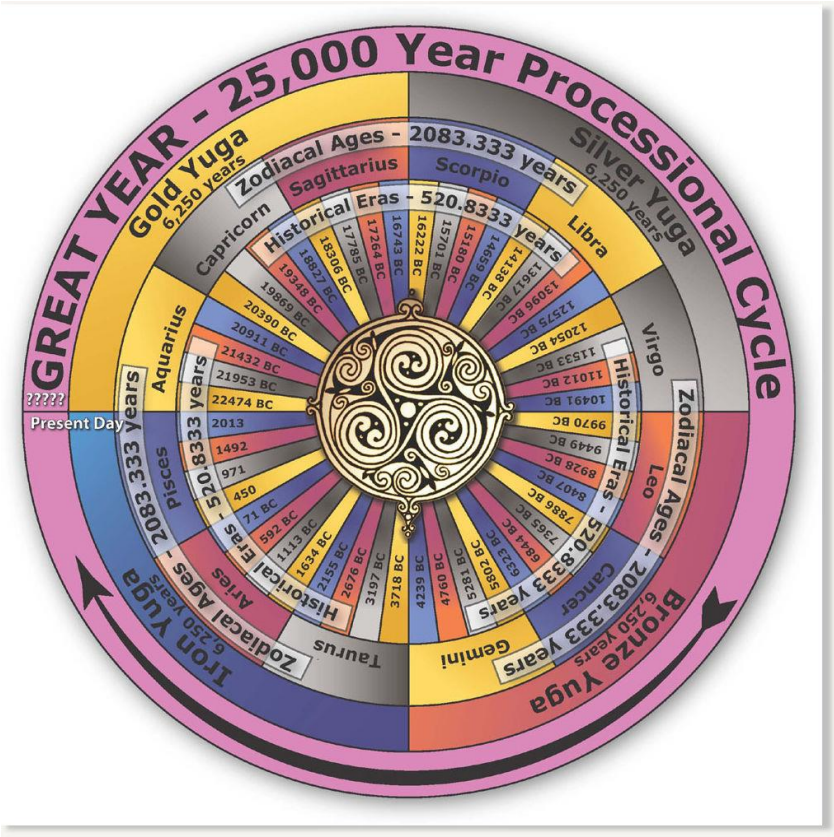

The ancients knew this as well and when Jesus was crucified it was the cross that we impose his fate upon. So, you see our Ancients understood and left in Freemasonry to be discovered by future Generations the truth and light of our creator. Which they refer to as the Great Architect of the Universe. Create Action Thus, + Creation. What ever language, Culture, Species requires energy, action and uses to hold its self together by the life giving creator in the center of the universe. Every galaxy, as far and beyond man will ever travel. Follows the Trinity, and in the center of every light in the heavens is the creator for that universe. And the random frequencies it will transmit outward as energy will manifest form from everything contain in nothingness and behold. How pleasant it is to dwell in unity.

Our species is the proof and existence of perfection of these organized signals and compliments coming from Trinity. By mere observation over the ages, how we have developed and mimic what was created within our species inner world and use to build and copy the laws of organized energy in creating the outer world about us. We feel we are connected to a God. We refer in all language and speak of Trinity, (Father Sun and Holy Ghost.) Which is referring to the three as one stars that make the Milky way exist and we too. But, if we are to look at the very beginning, that star before it formed. Was in nothingness, and all it took was an action. Like I said drop a rock in water. The elements follow the signals coming from the action and thus use everything contained in nothing obeys and attraction and repulsion will eventually, out of the energy organize. But, for life as we know it, everywhere on earth, follows these signals, and create ourselves energy to do Gods work. For we are created in the likeness of Trinity, and therefore, it follows we expend that energy and return to that energy to be reassigned. This is bigger than mankind and wherever you look in nothingness you will find we are connected to everything else. Which is why we experience a sense of Godliness. But, the truth it is in the Light and we follow the laws of energy as we are energy. So, let there Be Light.!

I have spent the last 22 years exploring this. My last seven years, led me to Freemasonry and here is where I have found the secrets that lay within, passed on from Ancient Stone Masons and written in Sypher symbols the story they continue to pass on mouth to ear to candidates that knock on the door seeking light. This system of memorizing and referencing the North, South, East and West depicts the creator's road map to nature and man. This cannot be solicited but rather, one must wait for the signal within to guide the path of good light and virtues where they take a good man and make them better. By passing on the light. And mimicking the four parts of a circle in energy within a trusted Fraternity of brotherly Love.

The Mayans 25,000-year progression calendar represented section designed as a circle with four parts. Depicting North, East, West and South. In the center the drawing shows Trinity interlaced within itself as the cause of the rotation of time. It is here the colors every 520 years show the transition of our earth through the Sagittarius "A" stars frequencies in color light. The same colors that we are created with and communicate within the brain with and are our chukars of energy. As we travel through these light waves the signals are energy that stimulate creation and the pattern influences not only our thoughts, but, stimulate the energy within. Depicts our return to the space where the cycle of light we pass through begins another repeated pattern of waves coming from the Sagittarius "A" star And the cycle of 25,000 years which just recently completed the Mayan calendar cycle. The east and west star laced in orbit around Sagittarius "A" star. Is what causes the ying and yang rotation of energy for not only our DNA which influenced by these frequencies but, it uses it to convert energy to mater and use it at will. That life was born from the random forming of our Galaxy.

How did the ancients know this? How were they able to see into Trinity and know its existence. That until just recent years science with it's technology of Telescopes in space, and instruments reading radio waves etc., It was just recently we were able to discover far reaching areas of our own galaxy and confirm of their existence. Our ancients knew more than us. When we entered the Iron age. The radio waves of Sagittarius A star influencing minerals and substances to organize had effects on mans thoughts and energies. We faltered and were stimulated greater by greed and virtues that that light coming to us causes. And for those 25,000 years we repeat a pattern of human greed and sufferance at the expense of one another.

As we will continue to do if we are contained in the protection of the loving arms of our creator. Waiting for our arrival to the beginning of the golden age where energy and matter stimulating and fostering the balance of energy from Trinity.

The ancients knew of this, lived and it passed, as we passed into the next phase of light going around our creator. I said earlier that I am a Freemason, and as such the Ritual Degrees and information to be learned are lessons passed on to raise a person's light and conscience thoughts and to rediscover one's self and how to interact and challenge the time we are here.

The lessons are all about the Square, Level, Plum and the circle, Triangle. And referenced by the East, South and West. The main frequencies of trinity. All our lessons speak from the grave of those ancients who came before us and left the road map and instructions to be discovered when we again arrive in the Golden Age of light and influence where mans best work can be accomplished and the level of greed is dampened. By our position in the cosmos.

We are light, we are energy influenced by radio frequencies and magnetically rotating fields of influence that stimulate and orient us in alignment to our energy system that created a vessel for which to gather food and mater and consume energy for our sub conscience receiver of light. To which we refer to as the "All-Seeing Eye". Our thought consciences of the creator's random existence. I say random because, there are an infinite number of radio producing stars in orbit around east magnetic and west magnetic field stars. And as such mimic the creation of energy that came out of nothingness and with a tug of east or west magnetic motion creating Action. Creation was born! and began pulling from nothingness all the elements of everything contained in nothing towards its mass. As far as our minds can comprehend, we mimic in the outer world of our bodies everything that already exists in perfection that made us. We are so special as an existence created out of organized random producing energy light and frequencies that are contained in magnetic fields that is the holding substance that matter is formed and maintains.

As far as the Voyager I and II have now traveled. Only one planet exists with life. The mere fact we can communicate is a blessing given by the creator- energy. The mere fact we can communicate with one another and change ideology into an objective, descriptive thought and transfer it now around our planet my mimicking the same energy within us to the outer world and conscience beings and blessed by the elements of a voice box to articulate our thoughts that we even exist at all. I want to never give up this gift of life, I want to extend myself beyond the grave and live the life of energy forever and ever. So, Mote it Be as the freemasons say in salutations. Meaning… It is done!

Going forward as the earth does and the galaxy travels in interstellar destinations. Unknown by man. I want to renew the readers desire to know out ancients. And the lessons and virtues as the golden age has arrived and our opportunity to once again reclaim the stars and our enlightenment to greater loftier accomplishments. We need to investigate getting rid of combustion energy, which is disturbing our magnetic poles. Reduce building man made magnets and electrical power plants. Get away from electricity producing and develop magnetic receiving devices and solar energy, so that our minds and bodies can return to the thoughtful kind environment, the DNA developed and maintains in us. Soaring into the heavens and one day come face to face with Creation. But as my book says Create Action. Thus, creation. We must rediscover our chukka energy and each and everyone's energy and light before we pass into being a good species into a great species.

The time will arrive when we need no airplanes, no trains, busses , etc., we will travel on that violet light as the energy we are. We will be able to once again take our inner thoughts generate them and they manifest in good ways into our outer world and beyond. Our light will be loved by the Ascended Masters Light and that peace will guide the planets and love will steer the stars.

Everything in this book was created from my mind universe and as Einstein once said. "I have seen further by standing on the shoulder of giants" I want to thank everyone who influenced me and allowed me to stand upon their shoulders. With Star Love… Jeff Ray Star Key aka Jeffrey W. Starke.

Dedication:

I want to thank my wife Jean (Emmer) Starke, whose, inner light guided me, and supported my thoughts, prayers and deeds by her love, passion and strength, helped me in understanding life. To my children, Shanna, Kara, and Stephanie whose light illumines my heart. And love to my Fraternal Brother Tracy who remains on the square and compass. Especially to my Brother Rick, who now resides in peace, in the celestial Lodge above, who taught me what life is and does without the use of words. And to my parents, Arlene and Duane. My mother, whom I came through, and my father for teaching me as a machinist, the value to a Square and compass by insisting it be perfect. And to all my Brothers in Masonry whom brought me into the light.

Eternally,

Jeff
